Read the story:

The Apache were not one single tribe, but a group of them: the Western Apache, Chiricahua, Jicarillo, Kiowa, Lipan, and Mescalero. They lived in the Southern Great Plains of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, and Oklahoma. They had semi-permanent homes called wikiups (or wigwams) made from living trees domed over to make a roof that was then covered in bark and grasses. They also had portable homes like tents: Tepees were made from long poles covered with a cone of hides sewn together. They could quickly be set up or dismantled and carried on sledges or horse-drawn wagons.

9. What is the best title for this story?
- A. Native Americans
 - B. The tribes of the Great Plains
 - C. Wigwams and Teepees
 - D. The Apache

10. Which shape most nearly represents a wigwam?

A.

B.

C.

D.

Quiz 1

1. C The passage is about how strong earthquakes are, so in this context, magnitude means strength.
2. B The passage says, “we can’t often feel earthquakes less than five” and “most go unnoticed” even though the NEIC records them, so most are likely less than 5 on the Richter Scale.
3. A The last line of the label says “Protein 20g” and since the label is “per bar” there are 20g of protein in a Peanut Power Protein Bar.
4. B The label says in bold “Total Carbohydrate 18g” but indented below are entries for dietary fiber and sugars, implying that these belong in the “carbohydrate” category.
5. D The passage introduces the scorpion by giving basic facts about what it is, what it’s like, and where it lives.
6. C The passage says that the Arizona bark scorpion is the only one that could be fatal, or is potentially or possibly fatal.
7. C Lessons are where a teacher instructs the students. In this schedule the third lesson is PE. Homeroom and snacks/reading aloud are not lessons.
8. B The last class of the day is Writing from 2:15pm to 2:45pm, making it thirty minutes long.
9. D The passage says who the Apache were (but not all Native Americans, and not all the tribes of the Great Plains) where they lived (the Great Plains) and the homes they lived in (wigwams and teepees).
10. C The passage says that the wigwams were made of saplings “domed over” and covered with grass and bark, and this is the only dome shape.

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

Scientists deal in facts. They have a question and they set out to find the answers. Sometimes they find them by observation of the natural world. Sometimes they find answers by doing experiments. They then analyze the data, which is all the evidence collected together, and draw conclusions from it. Sometimes they find an answer to the question; sometimes they just find more questions!

1. What conclusion can you draw from the passage?
 - A. Science is a very difficult subject.
 - B. It is hard to find answers to scientific questions.
 - C. The answer to science puzzles lies in doing experiments.
 - D. If we have a question about science, we need to watch the world around us.

2. In this passage, what does the word “draw” mean?
 - A. describe
 - B. explain
 - C. illustrate
 - D. extract

Read the ticket:

3. When should the ticket be used?
 - A. Twice
 - B. On 31 May
 - C. By 31 May
 - D. Any time

4. If I only take one trip during this time, I would
 - A. get a refund.
 - B. refill the card.
 - C. travel later
 - D. lose the other.

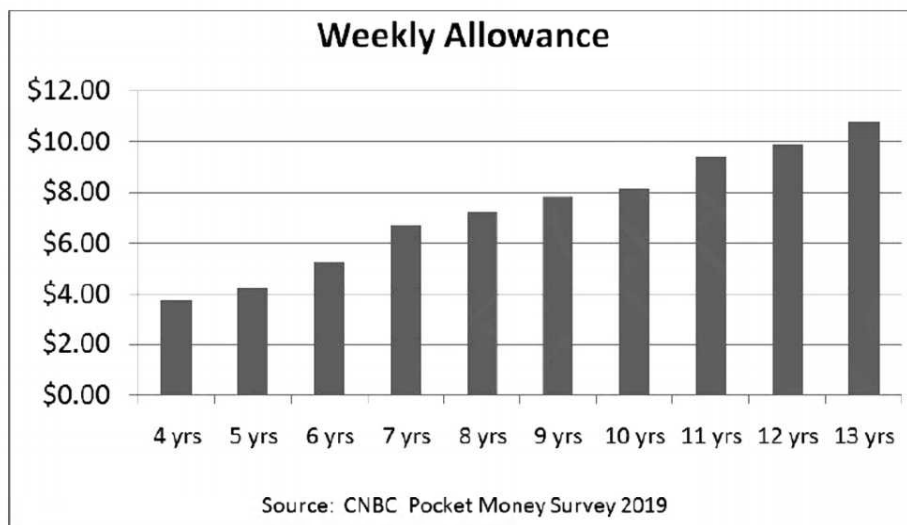

Read the story:

We are surrounded by systems. There is a school system which organizes education. There is a legal system which looks after laws and rights. There is a political system for our government. In our bodies we have a circulatory system and a nervous system. A system is a set of connected things working together and there are many examples in the natural world.

5. Based on the passage, which of these is a system?
 - A. A beehive
 - B. A pine tree
 - C. A rattlesnake
 - D. A sequoia

6. Which prefix added to “connected” means connected together?
- A. Dis-
 - B. Inter-
 - C. Trans-
 - D. Un-

Read the Chart:

7. You are 5 years old. How long would it take to double your allowance?
- A. 1 year
 - B. 3 years
 - C. 5 years
 - D. 7 years
8. In terms of a raise in your allowance, which is the WORST birthday?
- A. 5th
 - B. 7th
 - C. 10th
 - D. 12th

Read the story:

Rubber is a great natural material. Unfortunately, unless it has other ingredients added to it, it is of little use. Natural rubber breaks into pieces if it freezes, and dissolves into a gooey mess if it gets too hot. The man who discovered how to make rubber stable spent many years experimenting. His name was Charles Goodyear and he wanted to make rubber strong enough to make car tires that would last, and keep drivers and passengers safe.

9. Which is the best alternative to "stable" in this passage?

- A. durable
- B. secure
- C. calm
- D. committed

10. Which statement is likely TRUE?

- A. People rarely use rubber nowadays.
- B. Frozen rubber is brittle.
- C. Rubber is difficult to obtain.
- D. Charles Goodyear invented rubber.

Quiz 2

1. B The conclusion is given in the last sentence. Sometimes scientists find answers—but sometimes there are just more questions, so it is hard to find answers.
2. D Scientists pull out or extract conclusions from the data they collect.
3. C The ticket expires on 31 May, so it must be used by that date.
4. D The card is for two trips and is not refillable. So, if I take one trip, I would lose the other.
5. A The passage says a system is a set of connected things and that there are examples in our world and the natural world. A beehive has many connected parts: hive, honey, queen, bees, and so on. None of the other choices have connected parts/things.
6. B The prefix “inter” means together or between. So, “interconnected” means connected together.
7. C For a five-year-old, the allowance is just over $4. To get $8, you would be 10 years old, so it takes 5 years to double your allowance.
8. C The increase year on year is smallest between 9 years and 10 years. So, turning 10 would be the worst birthday for increasing your allowance.
9. A If something is stable, it doesn’t change or break down, so it is durable.
10. B The passage says that when rubber freezes, it breaks, which suggests it is brittle.

Quiz 3

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

People first began to live in settlements thousands of years ago. Over time, some settlements grew into villages with more permanent houses. Some were in places that made it easy to trade with other villages. They became prosperous and grew into towns. People in towns began to specialize in different jobs and group together to provide public buildings for government and religion. Some towns became bigger and more important and became cities. Now every country has many cities, like New York or San Francisco, and one capital city, such as Washington D.C., where the government is located.

1. What is the purpose of this passage?
 - A. To compare settlements and towns
 - B. To discuss the size of villages, towns and cities
 - C. To explain how cities evolved
 - D. To highlight the importance of capital cities

2. According to the definition in the passage, which of these is a capital city?
 - A. Moscow, Russia
 - B. Osaka, Japan
 - C. Oxford, U.K.
 - D. Shanghai, China

Pippa Gregory		Morning		Morning	Lunch

3. Which day is Mr. Cenk free?
- A. Monday
 - B. Tuesday
 - C. Wednesday
 - D. Thursday
4. How many days a week does Miss Gregory help out?
- A. 2.
 - B. 3
 - C. 4
 - D. 5

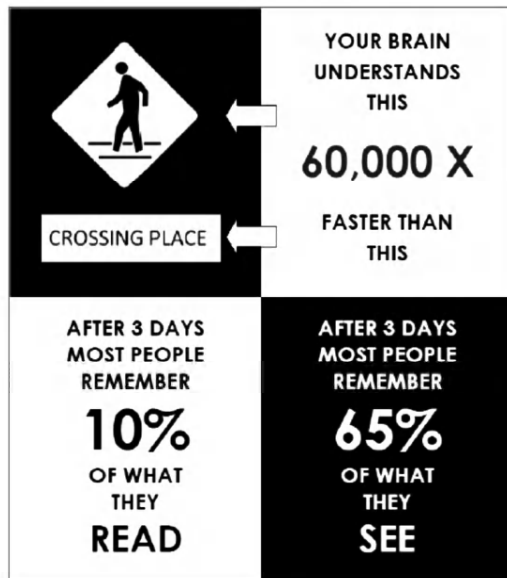

Read the story:

Years ago, food didn't travel very far, and many people grew their own vegetables. Finding a caterpillar in a cabbage or a beetle in your broccoli wasn't unusual. However, things have changed, and that includes the way we farm. Farms are much larger than they used to be, and they are heavily mechanized. Fields can artificially receive just the right amount of water and nutrients and can be sprayed with pesticides to kill insects. The advantages are less labor, fewer damaged crops, and higher crop yields.

5. As it is used in this passage, the word "heavily" most nearly means
 - A. broadly
 - B. weightily
 - C. almost always
 - D. a great deal

6. Based on the passage, what is likely to come next?
 - A. An explanation of crop yields.
 - B. Why labor costs, good crops and yields are important.
 - C. The disadvantages of these farming methods.
 - D. How things might change in the future.

7. Which proverb sums up this infographic?
- A. A picture paints a thousand words
 - B. Seeing is believing
 - C. You can't judge a book by its cover
 - D. Every picture tells a story
8. What does the infographic suggest?
- A. That we understand pictures quickly, but forget them easily
 - B. That we understand words easily, and never forget them
 - C. That we understand pictures quickly, and remember them easily
 - D. That we understand words easily, but find them hard to remember

Read the story:

Stick insects or stick bugs avoid predators through deception. First, they are well camouflaged and blend in with the plants they inhabit so that those that feed on apple trees may have rough brown skin like bark, while those that feed on bamboo will have green, smooth skins. Second, they often sway back and forth on their thin legs to mimic the movement of a leaf or a twig in the breeze. When approached by a predator, they will drop to the ground and lie absolutely still, fooling an attacker that either can't find them or thinks they are just a twig.

9. What is the best title for this passage?

- A. Stick Insect Habitats
- B. Stick Insects Survival Tactics
- C. What is a Stick Insect?
- D. Insect Cheats

10. The passage implies that stick insects

- A. are dangerous.
- B. can change color.
- C. damage many plants we find useful.
- D. live on the plants that they eat.

Quiz 3

1. C The passage explains how settlements grew into villages, how successful trading villages became towns, and how they began to specialize and grow into cities. So, it charts the development or evolution of cities.
2. A According to the passage a capital city is on where the government of a country is based. The government of Russia is based in Moscow, so Moscow is a capital city; the other choices are not.
3. A Zinni Cenk is a volunteer on Afternoon Recess from Tuesday to Friday, but not on Mondays.
4. B Pippa Gregory works on Tuesday and Thursday mornings and at lunch time on Fridays, making it three days a week.
5. D The passage is about how much machinery is on farms nowadays, so a “heavily” in this context means a great deal.
6. C The passage ends with a summary of the advantages of large, mechanized farms that use pesticides, so the most likely thing to come next are some of the disadvantages of this type of farming.
7. A The proverb “a picture paints a thousand words” means you can sum up an idea in one image what would take 1,000 words to explain, which matches the infographic’s message that pictures are faster to understand and remember.
8. C The infographic explains that we understand pictures 60,000 times faster than words, and that we remember 65% of what we see after 3 days, compared with just 10% of the words we read.
9. B The passage is about how insects avoid predators by camouflage, mimicry and playing dead. SO, the best choice is “Survival Tactics.”
10. D The passage says that stick insects look like the plants they “inhabit,” but then says that if they “feed” on an apple tree they will look like apple bark, so we can infer that they both eat and live in the same plants.

Quiz 1

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

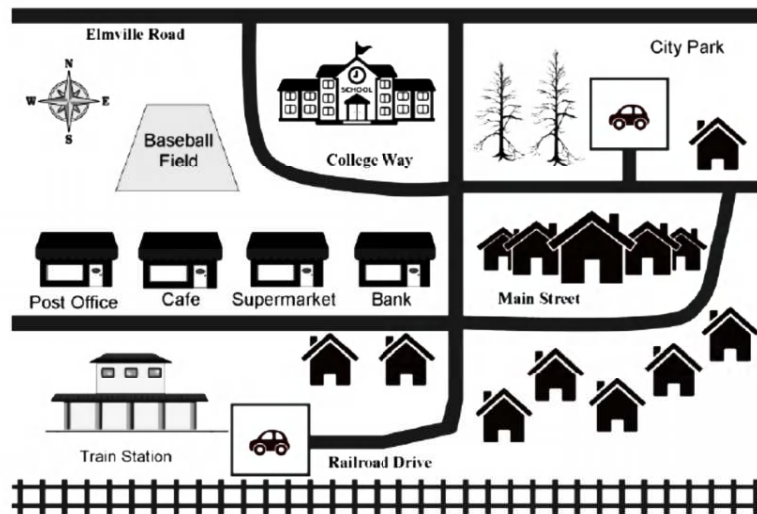

Read the passage:

Herculaneum was a Roman town on the coast of Italy. It was destroyed when Mount Vesuvius, a volcano, erupted in 79 CE. As the volcano erupted, it poured volcanic mud through the streets and buildings of the town at such a pace that people couldn't escape. In time, it set like plaster, preserving many objects people used in their daily lives, such as wooden beds, pottery lamps, and bowls of food. Archaeologists have carefully excavated the buildings. Underneath the volcanic material they found mosaics and beautiful wall paintings. From all the remains, they have been able to build up a picture of what life in a Roman city would have been like 2,000 years ago.

1. Why didn't the people of Herculaneum escape?
 - A. Their way was blocked with volcanic mud.
 - B. They were killed in the explosion when Vesuvius erupted.
 - C. They didn't have time to escape.
 - D. There weren't enough boats for them to leave.

2. What is the purpose of this story?
 - A. To persuade
 - B. To inform
 - C. To instruct
 - D. To entertain

Read the map:

3. Which statement is FALSE?
 - A. The south-western car park is next to the train station.
 - B. The northernmost street is Elmville Road.
 - C. The café is due south of the baseball field.
 - D. The school is to the east of City Park.

4. You live at the junction of College Way and Main Street. How would you get to the post office?
 - A. Turn right out of the drive, turn left at the first junction, and right at the second junction.
 - B. Head straight across the street and follow Main Street until the crossing, then turn left.
 - C. Turn left out of the drive, left at the first junction and then right at the crossing.
 - D. Head across the street, walk through the residential area, and turn right at the junction.

Read the story:

In 2003, a group of naturalists on a mountainside in Tanzania, Africa, discovered a new kind of monkey. It is one of thousands of new species discovered by scientists every year. Fortunately, organizations like the World Wildlife Fund are around to help save such animals. The kipunji is three feet tall and has a thick coat of grey-brown fur. Its face is black and it has side whiskers that make it look like a Victorian gentleman. There are thought to be around 1,000 of them living in Tanzania's mountains alone.

5. Which of the following sentences doesn't fit in this passage?
 - A. It is one of thousands of new species discovered by scientists every year.
 - B. Fortunately, organizations like the World Wildlife Fund are around to help save such animals.
 - C. The Kipunji is around three feet tall and has a thick coat of grey-brown fur.
 - D. Its face is black and it has side whiskers that make it look like a Victorian gentleman.

6. What does the passage suggest about the kipunji's numbers?
- A. There are likely to be fewer than 1,000 in the future.
 - B. There are only 1,000 of them left in the world.
 - C. There are probably many thousands lower down in Tanzania.
 - D. There could be many more than 1,000 in the world.

Read the story:

Fish are aquatic animals and have been around for 500 million years. They have fins to help them move through the water, and gills which allow them to breathe. The gills extract oxygen from water. Most fish have skeletons made of bones (just like we do), although some—such as sharks—have skeletons made of cartilage, which is a softer, more flexible material. (The tip of your nose is supported by cartilage rather than bone, which is why it moves.) The majority of fish are cold-blooded, which means they don't regulate their own body temperature like we do (we sweat to cool down and shiver to warm up), but match the temperature of their surroundings. There are around 25,000 species of fish that we know about: some no bigger than your little fingernail, others up to forty feet long.

7. Which statement is most likely TRUE?
- A. Fish are marine mammals that extract oxygen from water to breathe.
 - B. There are species of fish yet to be discovered.
 - C. Most fish have skeletons made of cartilage.
 - D. Fish are cold-blooded, the same temperature as water.
8. Why did the author include the information in parens () ?
- A. To make the text more interesting
 - B. To define difficult words and phrases
 - C. To support the main arguments with facts and details
 - D. To compare humans and fish to help readers understand

Diamante poems are diamond-shaped. They have just seven lines and the first and last lines contain a single noun each. Line four has nouns, too, but there are four of them. Lines two and six contain only a pair of adjectives. The remaining lines comprise three verbs or gerunds each. If the opening and closing nouns are synonyms of each other, the poem is a synonym diamante, and if the opening and closing lines contain words which are opposites, then it is an antonym diamante. While some types of poem, such as sonnets, are very old—Shakespeare wrote his more than 400 years ago—diamante poems are relatively new. They were invented in 1969 by an American poet called Iris McClellan Tiedt and are now very popular in schools.

9. Which question does the passage NOT answer?

1. C The passage says that the volcanic mud poured through the town “at such a pace” that they couldn’t escape, so they were trapped because they had no time to get away.
2. B The passage is designed to inform people about Herculaneum—what it is, what happened, why it is important.
3. D The school is on the left, or west of City Park, which is in the top right hand corner of the map.
4. A From the house in the top right hand corner of the map, going left onto College Way, left onto Railroad Drive and Right onto Main Street brings you to the post office.
5. B The main idea of the passage is the discovery of a new species of monkey in Tanzania. The passage doesn’t say it is in danger, so mentioning the WWF is irrelevant.
6. D If there are around 1,000 in Tanzania’s mountains alone, then there could be more living in mountains elsewhere in Africa and even elsewhere in the world.
7. B The passage says “there are around 25,000 species of fish that we know about” which suggests that there are others we don’t and are still to be discovered.
8. D The explanations help explain ideas about bone, cartilage, and temperature regulation by relating what readers know about their own bodies.
9. C We do not learn why Iris McClellan Tiedt invented the poetic form—just that she did.
10. B The key clue is that a diamante poems’ second and sixth lines contain “a pair of adjectives”.

Read the passage:

We think of deserts as hot, dry, and full of sand. Some deserts are like that, of course, but deserts are classified by geologists according to the amount of rain they get: below 250mm a year. Some deserts, like the Atacama in Chile, get no rain at all. Plants and animals rely on dew and the moisture from fog. Others, like the Arabian Desert in Oman get almost a whole year's rain in a few really heavy downpours, which leads to dangerous flooding. There are ancient deserts like the Namibian Desert in Africa with majestic, multi-colored sand-dunes, and there are flat deserts like the Gibson Desert in Australia, which is covered in dry grass. Temperatures can reach over 50°C. On the other hand, there are deserts like the Gobi in Mongolia where the temperature remains below freezing for six months or the year, and the largest desert in the world is Antarctica, which is an area of 5,500 square miles of ice and snow.

1. What is the best title for this passage?
 - A. Desert Variations
 - B. Worldwide Deserts
 - C. Desert Statistics
 - D. Deserts in Disguise

2. What is the author's attitude towards deserts?
 - A. Mixed
 - B. Enthusiastic
 - C. Cautious
 - D. Concerned

3. According to the chart, which statement is TRUE?
- A. Children 0-8 years old spend at least two hours a day in front of a screen.
 - B. Tablets and smartphones are popular because they are easy to carry.
 - C. TV is the most popular activity for children in their spare time.
 - D. Children under 8 would not need computers if they did not have homework.
4. What does the chart suggest about children 8 years old or younger?
- A. They spend the majority of their time watching TV.
 - B. They spend more than half their lives using electronic devices.
 - C. They spend more than 10 minutes a day using a computer.
 - D. They spend twice as much time watching DVDs as playing video games.

Read the story:

Great white sharks have a fearsome reputation. They have 250 very sharp teeth. These are used to tear their food into chunks the shark can swallow whole. They can reach over 20 feet in length and can swim at 15 miles an hour. In comparison, a really fast swimmer can reach a top speed of just 6 miles per hour—no match for a great white. However, they prefer to eat seals, and that's the reason why there are more shark attacks on humans in places where seals live: they mistake swimmers for seals. Great whites are pale underneath and dark on top to avoid detection when they hunt. From under the water, they blend in to the light from above.

5. What type of text is this?

- A. cause and effect
- B. chronology
- C. comparison
- D. description

6. Which statement is TRUE?

- A. The great white's pale belly acts as camouflage against the sky.
- B. Great whites attack swimmers because they move twice as fast.
- C. People have wrong ideas about great whites.
- D. A twenty-foot great white can swallow a seal whole.

Read the story:

The word quilt comes from the Latin word culcita, meaning a stuffed mattress or cushion. In the 1800s, quilting became very popular in America. It was a way to make something useful from scraps of fabric too small for anything else. However, the technique of sandwiching padding between layers of material and fixing it in place with decorative stitches wasn't originally to make comforters or bed covers, but to make clothing. It is impossible to tell when people began quilting, but 5,000 year-old evidence was found recently in the Temple of Osiris at Abydos in Egypt. In the Medieval Period (476-1453) armor and chainmail was rough and cold, so soldiers wore quilted clothing underneath to protect their skin. In the days of Queen Elizabeth I of England (1533-1603), it became very fashionable for men to wear jackets stitched from "doubled" padded cloth which became known as doublets.

7. When did people probably begin quilting?
 - A. In the 1800s
 - B. When people had textiles
 - C. In the Medieval Period
 - D. 5,000 years ago in England

8. Put the following in chronological order.
 1. Quilted clothing is found in Egypt.
 2. Knights wore quilted clothing under their armor.
 3. Quilting became a popular hobby in the America.
 4. Quilted clothing becomes fashionable in England.

 - B. You are 6 years old and it is 9.00 am on Saturday.
 - C. You are 12 years old and it is 3.00 pm on Sunday.
 - D. You are 9 years old and it is 11.00 am on Saturday.
8. For what reason would you visit www.openart.org?
- A. To find out when the competition was
 - B. To find out what to bring to the competition
 - C. To find out who could enter the competition
 - D. To find out where the competition was

Read the story:

In April 2024 there will be a rare eclipse visible from the United States. It will be a total eclipse, leaving the U.S. in darkness for about 4 minutes. The next one will not happen until 2045. Total eclipses happen because the Earth wobbles on its axis. That means that sometimes the Moon is closer to the Earth. Being closer, it looks bigger from Earth and so it covers the Sun completely. For most eclipses the Moon only partially covers the Sun, leaving a ring of light all around. These are called annular eclipses.

9. Which sentence is NOT necessary?
- A. In April 2024 there will be a rare eclipse visible from the United States.
 - B. It will be a total eclipse, leaving the US in darkness for about 4 minutes.
 - C. The next one will not happen until 2045.
 - D. Total eclipses happen because the Earth wobbles on its axis.
10. We can guess from the passage that “annular” means
- A. ring-shaped
 - B. yearly
 - C. half
 - D. unusual

Quiz 3

1. D A façade is the front of a building and is reflected in the pond in front of the building.
2. B “In fact” is used to introduce contrasting or surprising information and it is surprising that people find a tomb a romantic place to visit.
3. B The best place to go shopping would be The Palms because it has five asterisks.
4. D Overall, there is something to please everyone at City Park which has 12 asterisks in total.
5. C This passage is explaining the real reason why flamingos stand on one leg.
6. C A concept is the idea you have in your head about what something is. A theory is a set of ideas about something unknown, based on what is known.
7. A You wouldn’t be able to take part in the competition at 1pm on Sunday because on Sunday the competition doesn’t start until 2.00 pm.
8. D The poster says that there are many venues where you can take part. To find out, you need to visit the website.
9. C The passage is about total eclipses and why they are rare, so this sentence doesn’t add anything to the passage.
10. A The passage says that during an annular eclipse there is a “ring of light” around the Moon which doesn’t cover the Sun completely, so we can guess that “annular” means ring-shaped.

Quiz 1

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

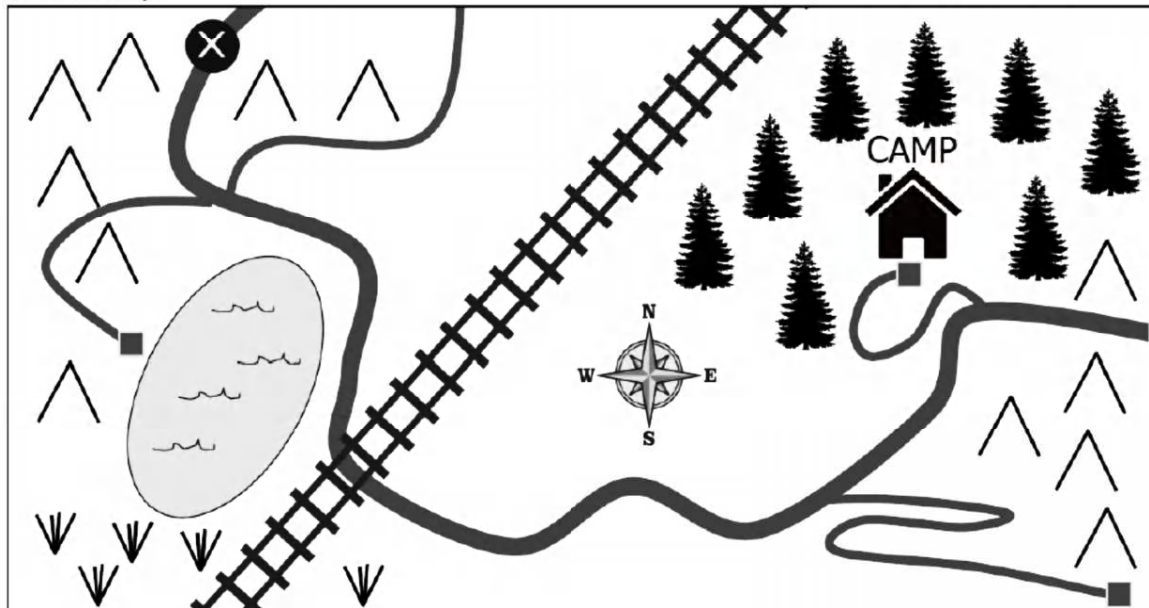

Read the passage:

Remarkably, cats only meow when they talk to their humans—not when they talk to each other. With other cats, they might growl, hiss, spit or yowl. Overall, however, most cat communication is through body language, especially use of the tails. A cat that is relaxed will stroll about with its tail up in the air. A very happy cat might even curl its tail backward towards its head. If the cat’s fur is standing on end and the tail looks like a bottle brush, then it is threatened or angry. If the cat’s tail is swishing rapidly back and forth it is usually very cross. On the other hand, a gently swishing tail suggests the cat is concentrating.

1. Which choice could replace “Remarkably,” without altering the meaning of the passage?
 - A. Saying that,
 - B. Surprisingly,
 - C. Really,
 - D. Unusually,

2. The passage implies which of the following?
 - A. Cats rarely communicate out loud.
 - B. A cat without a tail can’t communicate.
 - C. Cats have developed a way to communicate with people.
 - D. Cats communicate using their ears and whiskers.

Read the map:

KEY	Railway		Forest		Lake
	Road		Marsh		Mountain
	Track

3. Which statement is FALSE?
 - A. The railroad track runs south west to north east.
 - B. There is a lake in the mountains north of the railroad track.
 - C. There is a marsh north of the road and east of the railroad track.
 - D. The eastern side of the map is characterized by mountains and forest.

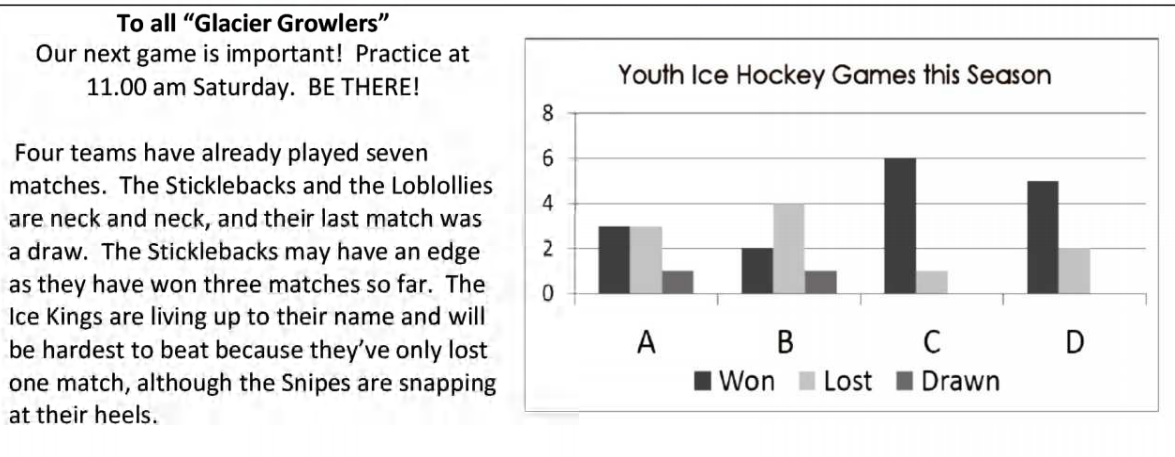

4. To get from X to the camp, whose directions are most accurate?
 - A. Jack: Follow the road west through the mountains toward the lake, and then cross the railroad tracks. Follow the road until you reach a right angled bend, then turn right onto the track.
 - B. Maria: Take the junction on the left. You can't miss it.
 - C. Ramon: Follow the road past a crossroads with a track until you fringe the lake and keep going until you cross under the railroad track. The road heads off towards some more mountains. Ignore the track on the right and take the next one on the left which heads towards the trees.
 - D. Amy: Follow the road south through the mountains, around the northern end of a lake, over the railroad tracks, and north east towards the forest. Take the turn on your left.

Read the story:

Fossils need the right conditions. There are all kinds, from fossils of algae that sank to the sea floor a billion years ago to whole dinosaurs that fell into a lake 60 million years ago. To become a fossil, there has to be water and sediment. Sediment is fine soil, sand or clay particles. The plant or animal sinks to the bottom of a body of water and is covered by layer upon layer of sediment. The soft tissues dissolve until only a skeleton is left. In due course, the layers of sediment solidify into stone that often becomes exposed. Ground water eventually dissolves the bone, leaving a shape—like a jelly mold—inside. Over time, water rich with minerals fills up the mold and it hardens into the shape of the original bone. After even more time, the top layers of the rock wear away because of wind and rain and the fossil bone lies exposed, ready for a paleontologist to find.

5. What is the purpose of this text?
- A. To describe the process by which fossils are formed.
 - B. To make a comparison between fossil types.
 - C. To offer a solution to the problem of finding fossils.
 - D. To recount a story about finding fossil bones.
6. Which choice is closest in meaning to the phrase “In due course”?
- A. Eventually
 - B. Finally
 - C. In the long run
 - D. Ultimately

7. There are four ice hockey teams mentioned: The Sticklebacks, The Loblollies, The Ice Kings, and The Snipes. Which letter on the chart represents the Sticklebacks?
- A. A
 - B. B
 - C. C
 - D. D
8. Why does the notice give details about the four ice hockey teams?
- A. To encourage the team members to turn up for practice
 - B. To show that they are nothing to be afraid of
 - C. The Glacier Growlers will have to play one of the other teams
 - D. To supply information about a topic people are interested in

Read the text:

In the past, long-distance travel was only possible by sea, and navigators were welcomed home with bonfires. Soon, port cities began constructing stone platforms on which to build their bonfires, and later, stone platforms. The higher the platform, the further out to sea it could be seen, helping guide ships into safe water. In time, the platforms became towers with huge hearths in open galleries at the top: our first lighthouses. Nowadays lighthouses warn ships of danger. Each one has a unique combination of light colors and signals so that mariners know exactly where they are. If they can see the light flashing, they are sailing into danger. At one time, there were over a thousand lighthouses in America alone, but with modern navigational aids, some have been put up for sale and many are being turned into holiday homes.

9. What is the main difference between lighthouses in the past and lighthouses today?
- A. How they are used
 - B. How many there are
 - C. The way they are built
 - D. Their location
10. What does the passage suggest about the future of lighthouses?
- A. They will lie empty.
 - B. They will be destroyed.
 - C. They will become holiday homes.
 - D. They will be used for something else.

Quiz 1

1. B People think cats always meow when they talk, so it is surprising to learn that they only meow to humans and not other cats.
2. C The passage suggests that since cats only meow to humans, they have developed that way to communicate especially. With other cats, they don't meow.
3. C This is false. The marsh is to the west of the railroad track.
4. D The road flows down (south) through the mountains, then curls around the top (north) of the lake, crosses the railroad, then heads to the top right hand corner of the map (north east) where there is a forest and one track leading to the camp.
5. A The passage describes the steps involved to make a fossil, so this is a process.
6. C The passage says, "in due course" the sediment becomes stone, which means "eventually".
7. A The notice says the Sticklebacks and Loblollies are fairly evenly matched, but that the Sticklebacks have WON three matches. "Won" is the dark grey column, and only "A" shows 3 for that column.
8. C We can guess that the notice says what the other teams are doing to urge the Glacier Growlers to work hard so they can beat the other teams.
9. A The passage says the first lighthouses were to "guide ships into safe water," but that nowadays "lighthouses warn ships of danger."
10. D We don't know what the lighthouses that were put up for sale would be used for, but they wouldn't be destroyed or abandoned if people had bought them. On the other hand, we can't say they will all be turned into holiday homes so "used for something else" covers everything.

Quiz 2

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

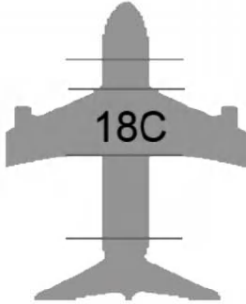

Trees are like icebergs. Much of their mass is hidden under the surface of the ground. What we see above ground are the trunk and the canopy. The canopy is the umbrella of branches and leaves that gives the tree its shape. What we can't see is the complex network of roots without which a tree couldn't survive. Trees are not like carrots: they don't usually have a single main or "tap" root, but a whole host of roots. The small, thin roots near the surface collect water and nutrients from the ground to feed the tree, while the thicker, deeper roots act as an anchor to keep the tree steady. Most people think that the radius of the roots is the same as the radius of the tree canopy, but they'd be wrong. Roots can grow three times as wide as their canopy in the first few years, but after that, roots grow outward for as many meters as the tree is high.

1. The author likens trees to
 - A. Anchors
 - B. Carrots
 - C. Icebergs
 - D. Umbrellas

2. According to the passage, a mature tree 100m high with a 60m canopy would have roots with a diameter of how many meters?
 - A. 100
 - B. 120
 - C. 180
 - D. 200

- A. The passenger will leave around noon and arrive the next morning.
 - B. The passage will leave early in the morning and arrive later that day.
 - C. The passenger will leave after lunch and arrive in the evening.
 - D. The passenger will leave after midnight and arrive the following evening.
4. What does the ticket tell us about where Mr. Aimes will be sitting?
- A. Nothing
 - B. At the front of the plane
 - C. In the middle of the plane
 - D. At the back of the plane

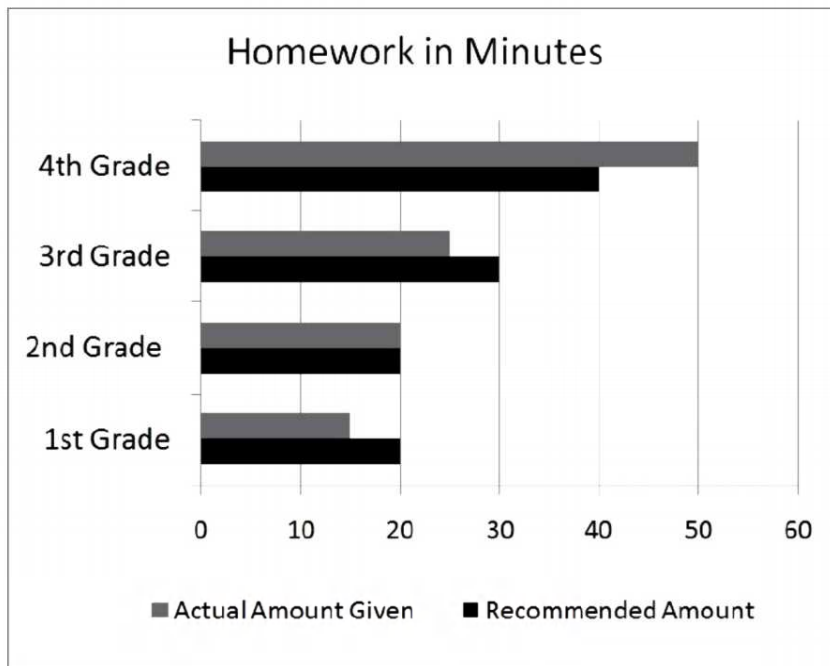

Read the story:

[A] In 1621 the Dutch West India Company decided to colonize America from Cape Cod to the Delmarva Peninsula. [B] The company was interested in the fur trade and wanted Dutch people to settle in America so they could help ship the animal skins back to Europe. It took around 30 years for New Netherlands to get started, but by the middle of the seventeenth century, the settlements had expanded. The capital of New Amsterdam was located on the tip of Manhattan island. It was a bustling port with a large fort to protect ships and a busy town where all kinds of European goods could be found. [C] In 1664, however, the Dutch handed the city over to the King Charles II of England, and it was named after the king's brother, the Duke of York.

5. Look at this sentence "The people of Holland were great seafarers." Should this sentence be in the story? If so, where?
 - A. Yes, at point A
 - B. Yes, at point B
 - C. Yes, at point C
 - D. No, it isn't necessary.

6. The word "bustling" implies that the port was
 - A. large.
 - B. important.
 - C. busy.
 - D. rich.

8. Which fact is most significant?
- A. First graders get between 10 and 20 minutes of homework.
 - B. Only second graders get exactly the right amount of homework.
 - C. Third graders get less than the recommended amount of homework.
 - D. Fourth graders get more homework than 1st, 2nd or 3rd graders.

Read the story:

Having hiccups can be annoying and they can take a while to stop, but they are rarely harmful. Remedies include drinking a glass of water, putting an ice-cube or cold spoon down the back of your neck, breathing into a brown paper bag, holding your breath, or having somebody jump out at you, shouting "boo!" Usually, however, they just go away on their own after a few minutes. They are caused when the diaphragm misbehaves. The diaphragm is a large muscle curved like a mushroom. When you breathe in, your lungs push it flat. When you breathe out, the diaphragm returns to its dome shape and pushes the air out again. Eating or drinking too fast, or getting very excited or upset, can make the diaphragm flatten when it should be dome-shaped and dome up when it should be flat, at odds with your breathing. The body makes you hiccup to get the two back in sync.

9. Which choice best sums up what a hiccup is?

- A. A problem
- B. A solution
- C. A cause
- D. An effect

10. Which question does the passage NOT answer?

- A. How can you cure hiccups?
- B. What causes hiccups?
- C. Does everyone get hiccups?

Quiz 2

1. C The passage says, “Trees are like icebergs.” The other comparisons refer to the roots or the canopy alone.
2. D The passage says after the first few years “roots grow outward (the radius) for as many meters as the tree is high 100m) so it would have a root diameter of 200m.
3. A The plane leaves at 12:34 PM which is just after midday, and arrives at 6:50 in the morning, which is the morning after.
4. C The label 18C is in the middle section of the plane.
5. D Using “Holland” (an alternative to the Netherlands) is confusing, and the passage is about colonies in America and how New York got its name, not about how good Dutch people were at sailing.
6. C “Bustle” means excited activity, so a bustling port is a busy one.
7. D On the chart, the “actual” grey bar is longer than the black “recommended” bar by a whole ten minutes.
8. B The chart is about the difference between the amount of homework recommended and the amount school children actually get, so the most important fact is that only 2nd Graders get the right amount—everyone else gets more or less than they should.
9. B The passage explains that when the diaphragm gets upset, hiccups are the body’s solution. They are there to get the diaphragm and lungs working properly together again.
10. C The one question the passage doesn’t answer is whether everyone gets hiccups.

Read the passage:

Graphene is an amazing form of carbon. Carbon has many different forms, from the burnt bits on your morning toast to a sparkling diamond. What makes graphene unique is that it is the only 2D material we know about. It is just one atom thick. You would need three million graphene sheets to make a stack just one millimeter high. It is incredibly strong, and can stop a bullet better than steel, but it is also flexible and can conduct electricity. With such a remarkable material, we may soon have computer screens that can be crunched into a pocket like a paper hanky!

1. What is the author's attitude towards graphene?
 - A. excited
 - B. worried
 - C. interested
 - D. neutral

2. Which of the following is NOT a reasonable inference?
 - A. There are probably other 2D materials yet to be discovered.
 - B. Graphene could replace Kevlar in armor for soldiers
 - C. So far, scientists haven't made anything useful from graphene.
 - D. Smartphone companies are likely interested in graphene.

	Business	Families	Couples	Singles
Palm Beach Resort
Paradise Bay
The Island Hotel
Tikki Palace

KEY

BEST	←	→	WORST	Not applicable

3. For a family holiday, where would it be best to stay?
- Palm Beach Resort
 - Paradise Bay
 - The Island Hotel
 - Tikki Palace

4. We can infer from the The Tikki Palace that it
- is a business hotel.
 - doesn't have a swimming pool.
 - has no facilities for children.
 - doesn't like families.

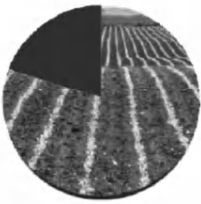

Read the story:

Sea spiders can be found at the bottom of the ocean all around the world. They aren't spiders at all but may have evolved from the same ancestor many millions of years ago. They have thin, spindly legs and tiny bodies and come in all shapes and sizes. Some are about the size of your little finger, but others, especially those deep in chilly Arctic waters can grow to incredible sizes of up to two feet across. They mainly feed on sponges and sea anemones, although they don't kill them: they suck nutrients from them. The strangest thing about sea spiders is that they breathe through their legs, which are porous and can extract oxygen from sea water.

5. According to the passage, what is FALSE about sea spiders and spiders?
- They look similar.
 - They likely had a common ancestor.
 - They live in similar environments.
 - They breathe in different ways.

6. According to the passage, where would the biggest sea spiders likely be found?
- The Indian Ocean
 - The Irish Sea
 - The Pacific Ocean
 - The Behring Sea

Read the poster:

There are 50,000 bees in a hive.	There are 2.62 million hives in the U.S.A.	Each hive can make 6 lbs of honey in a season.

80% of America's crops are pollinated by bees	One bee can visit 5,000 flowers a day	1 in 3 spoonfuls of food is possible because of bees.

7. The poster implies that
- honey is found in $\frac{1}{3}$ of all food.
 - $\frac{1}{3}$ of the planet's food is bee pollinated.
 - honey is popular among $\frac{1}{3}$ of all Americans.
 - $\frac{1}{3}$ of all bees are kept in hives.
8. What conclusion can you draw from the poster?
- Bees are essential to America's agricultural sector.
 - Bees are very social insects and live in big groups.
 - Honey is an important food source.
 - Bees play an important role in pollinating plants.

Read the story:

Audiobooks are now outselling e-books, even though they are dearer than printed books and much more expensive than e-books. There are millions of titles available. When the first e-books appeared, publishers feared they would no longer be able to afford to commission new books. That has all changed. People live very busy lives these days, and whereas in the past you had to do your chores before you could settle down with a great story, now you can do both together. With an audio book you can walk or jog, garden or do chores, or entertain yourself on a long journey. And experts now believe that listeners get more out of an audio book than they do from the printed page.

9. What is the main reason for the popularity of audiobooks?
- A. There are millions of titles available.
 - B. Experts think they are better than ordinary books.
 - C. They are dearer to people's hearts than regular books.
 - D. People are so busy they have to do two things at once.
10. Reading this passage, how would a book publisher likely feel?

Quiz 3

1. A The author's use of language like amazing, incredibly strong, and a remarkable material suggest that the author is excited about graphene and all its qualities.
2. C The passage doesn't suggest that they have or haven't successfully made anything from graphene, so this is not a reasonable inference.
3. B The key shows that the best place in each category is shown with a black box. Paradise Bay is shaded black in the column labeled "Families."
4. C The key to the chart shows that a white box means "not applicable". There's a white box under "Families" for the Tikki Palace meaning that there is nothing there for families—including children.
5. C The passage says that sea spiders live at the bottom of the ocean, and we know that regular spiders don't live in water, so this statement is false.
6. D The passage says that in cold water (like the Arctic) sea spiders grow to the largest dimensions. The Behring Sea is between Russia and Alaska, so we can guess the biggest spiders would be there.
7. B The poster says that one in three spoonfuls (a third) of all food is possible because of bees, and bees help to produce food by pollinating crops.
8. A The poster says 80% of America's crops are pollinated by bees, so they are essential to the agriculture of the country.
9. D The passage explains that because people lead very busy lives, they don't have time to do one thing, and then sit and read a book. Instead, they can listen to an audiobook while they do something else.
10. B A publisher would be encouraged reading this passage because it suggests that because audiobooks are so popular (sales are outselling e-books even though they are much more expensive) that they will be able to commission more books and stay in business.

1. D In the passage "running" means becoming or getting is used in the same way as in this sentence.
2. C We can tell she is worried because she takes hold of Brad's hand and moves away from the trouble.
3. A The passage suggests it is a dragon because it has claws, a tail, breathes fire and can fly.
4. C The best evidence that it is a dragon is that it breathes fire.
5. C We can guess that Skyler has been sleeping because he jerks upright when he hears the clock striking eight, and then sinks back into his pillows, which suggests a bed.
6. B Presently means by and by or after a time and in this story "after a moment" is the closest in meaning.
7. A When people become nervous if they have to perform in front of an audience, it is called stage fright.
8. D Marsha's uncle tells her that the music wants to play, so she takes a big breath and closes her eyes, and when she "let go" she let the music play.

 - D. New York

Read the poem:

Said the Wind to the Moon, "I will blow you out.
You stare
In the air
Like a ghost in a chair,
Always looking what I am about;
I hate to be watched—I will blow you out."

The Wind blew hard, and out went the Moon.
So deep,
On a heap
Of clouds, to sleep,
Down lay the Wind, and slumbered soon—
Muttering low, "I've done for that Moon."

7. What is the rhyme scheme of the poem?

- A. A, B, B, B, A, A
- B. A, B, A, B, A, B
- C. A, B, C, C, A, B
- D. A, B, C, B, A, A

8. What does "out went the moon" mean?

- A. The sun came up.
- B. The moon ran away.
- C. The wind killed the moon.
- D. The clouds hid the moon.

Read the story:

The rocks ahead looked like sharks' teeth snapping at the impossibly blue sky. The air was so clear JD felt like he could reach out and touch the patches of purple-shadowed snow under the peak. They were still around a mile distant. The wind whispered encouragement, silvering the short grass as he squared his shoulders and went on.

9. What is this story about?

- A. Achieving success
- B. Climbing a mountain
- C. The coming of spring
- D. A beautiful day

10. Which of these is personified by the author?

- A. The rocks
- B. The air
- C. The peak
- D. The wind

Quiz 2

1. C The passage refers to a counter and a stove which would be found in a kitchen.
2. B Aria has been practicing her juggling with maple syrup bottles and one had shattered on the floor that her mom has just washed, so she is expecting her mom to yell at her.
3. D The rain comes "pitter-patter", which is gentle, at the beginning of the poem, but line 6 it is fierce: "it lashes and beats."
4. A The poem implies that the author hates the rain because he refers to it as "spiteful."
5. B The time is two minutes past two and the shop is closed. Kepple refers to tardiness, so we can guess he is just a little late, which suggests it is Saturday as the shop closes at 2 pm on that day.
6. C The reference to a tumbleweed, a hot wind, and a sign in English and Spanish suggests that the story is set in New Mexico.
7. A The last word of each line gives the rhyme. A (moon) rhymes with "soon" and "moon". B (deep) rhymes with heap and sleep, making A, B, B, B, A, A the correct scheme.
8. D The poem says "out went the Moon. / So deep, /On a heap /Of clouds," which suggests that the clouds have covered up the moon.
9. B The story is about a "peak" that JD is trying to reach, so he is climbing a mountain.
10. D The wind is personified, because only people can encourage you to do something, although the passage says that the "wind whispered encouragement."

Quiz 3

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

Peri sat on the boulder and dug her toes deep into the sand. Sunlight fell like a benediction onto her freckled, upturned face. The sound of the waves was soothing, and the ceaseless cry of the gulls reminded her of every holiday she'd ever had. Somehow, without the gulls, it would have been less real.

1. Where does the story take place?
 - A. in the park
 - B. at home
 - C. on the beach
 - D. in the woods

2. We can guess from the story that Peri _____ the sun.
 - A. avoids
 - B. welcomes
 - C. dislikes
 - D. worships

Read the poem:

Red faced, gap-toothed, grinning
Candle-lit eyes twinkle at night.
Along the street, children come dinning
Laughing and jostling, feigning fright.
From the fields by the ton
Then never more seen
Now that October's done
And we've had Halloween.

3. What is the poem about?
 - A. Children
 - B. Trick or Treat
 - C. Pumpkins
 - D. Halloween

4. Which line tells us that the children are noisy?
 - A. "Red faced, gap-toothed, grinning"
 - B. "Along the street, children come dinning"
 - C. "Laughing and jostling, feigning fright"
 - D. "And we've had Halloween"

Read the passage:

Gift wrapped in sunshine, Abby thought, staring out at the new world. The ribbon—almost a bow—was formed of the twin tire tracks from Mr. Henty's car. He'd called on his way up to the Henderson's saying school was canceled. The old school bus was trapped in Edensville at the bottom of the long climb and wouldn't be going anywhere until the big snowplow had been through.

5. Why does Abby describe the day as “gift wrapped?”
- A. Because it looks so beautiful
 - B. Because the tire tracks make a ribbon shape in the snow
 - C. Because the sun is shining
 - D. Because she doesn’t have to go to school
6. What does the passage imply about Abby’s home?
- A. It is on the side of a hill.
 - B. It is old.
 - C. It is big.
 - D. It doesn’t have any neighbors

Read the poem:

Upon my back, I carry a pack,
A great canvas sack with buckle and strap
Filled to the top with I don’t know what—
Pens and erasers, a book about lasers
Some pencils and paper and homework for later.
Along sidewalk and road, I transport my load,
But am I a mule?
No. Just a child off to school.

7. What is the author’s TONE?
- A. angry
 - B. amazed
 - C. annoyed
 - D. amused
8. What is the main idea of the poem?
- A. Children have to go to school.
 - B. Children should take the bus to school.
 - C. Children have too much to carry to school.
 - D. Children shouldn’t have homework from school.

Read the story:

Duh-duh-duh-shwump. Duh-duh-duh-shwump. Jake sits on the wall, rolling his skateboard back and forth on the uneven concrete. Duh-duh-duh-shwump. One of his sneakers has a tear along the side and the laces are uneven. Duh-duh-duh-shwump. He thrusts lean legs out to their fullest extent and then swings them back, slamming the board into the wall. Duh-duh-duh-shwump. His sudden movement startles me. "So?" he demanded. "Are we going or what?"

9. The story is told from which perspective?
 - A. First person, by a main character
 - B. Second person, by a narrator
 - C. Third person limited narrator
 - D. Third person, omniscient narrator

10. Why does the author repeat the phrase "Duh-duh-duh-shwump"?
 - A. It makes a sound like a skateboard rolling back and forth.
 - B. It slows down the pace of the story.
 - C. It makes the skateboard important.
 - D. It suggests Jake is thinking.

ANSWERS
Literature - Basic
Quiz 3

1. C We can tell Peri is on a beach because she not only digs her toes into the sand, but she can hear the waves and see gulls flying overhead.
2. B The passage says the sun falls “like a benediction” (a blessing) so Peri welcomes the sun, but she doesn’t worship it.
3. C The poem is about pumpkins. They have “red” faces and their eyes are lit with candles at Halloween when they come “from the fields by the ton” and aren’t seen again until the following year.
4. B The poem says that the children ‘come dinning’ which is another way of saying “making a din” or “making a racket”—meaning they are noisy.
5. D The passage tells us that there is a heavy snowfall, the bus can’t get through and there’s no school. So, Abby says the day is “gift-wrapped in sunshine” because she has a whole free day of wonderful snow.
6. A We can tell the house is on the side of the hill because Mr. Henty is on his way “up” to the Henderson’s, and the school bus is “at the bottom of the long climb.”
7. D The author is amused (and a little indignant) because she likens the pupil to a pack mule because there are so many things to take to school.
8. C The message is serious, however: children have too much to carry. We can tell from the long list of items (pens, erasers, a book and so on) and because of the comparison to a pack mule as they are known for carrying heavy loads.
9. A The narrator refers to Jack as “he” but also refers to “me” or himself as the speaker, so it is told in the first person.
10. D The repetition of the sound in between bits of the story, followed by the abrupt change when Jake asks if they were going to the park (when the repetition stops) suggests that all the while the sound is repeated Jake is making up his mind.

Quiz 4

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

People think Mount Rushmore is pretty cool—and it is, but it isn't as cool as old Blackeyes. Blackeyes was a "phenomenon," so Pa always said: a phenomenon of Nature. Blackeyes was part of the cliff at Eagle's Ridge. The ground was the kind of rock that made caves. Soft rock, that broke and shattered. Nature had arranged the pieces like LEGOs, building a chin here and a nose there, wide cheeks and a broad forehead, so—with two old caves for eyes—when viewed from the right spot it looked like old Chief Yellowtail that we all called Blackeyes.

1. What is the passage about?
 - A. A Native American Chieftain
 - B. A national monument
 - C. An unusual landscape
 - D. Some local geology

2. Why is the word "phenomenon" in quotation marks?
 - A. To show it is a difficult word that may need a dictionary
 - B. To indicate it has a special meaning in this passage
 - C. Because it is direct speech and that's what the narrator says
 - D. To suggest the emphasis the narrator's father gave it

Read the poem:

1. You cannot see me—no, not I,
2. Though you'll hear me whispering as I pass by.
3. You'll hear me roaring in the midst of a storm,
4. Or hear nothing at all in the hurricane's eye.
5. But even when I breathe as soft as the air
6. There are signs you can use to see that I'm there,
7. A silvering of grass, a leaf tossed on high,
8. A flag streaming wide, will make you aware.

3. What is the poem about?

- A. wind
- B. weather
- C. senses
- D. mind

4. The poem originally had two verses. Where should the poem be split?

- A. At line 3
- B. At line 4
- C. At line 5
- D. At line 7

Read the passage:

Above the streets of New York, another world is opened up, full of interesting objects. The cars of the elevated railway sweep by the upper stories of the houses, but never too fast that you can't catch a glimpse into the high-rise lives as they pass by. From here, the view reveals the secrets of a thousand homes never dreamed of by the giddy, restless crowd that hurries along impatiently in the streets below.

5. The phrase "opened up" could be replaced by all of the following words EXCEPT:
- A. unfolded
 - B. confessed
 - C. displayed
 - D. revealed
6. Which choice best described the people in the streets below the railway?
- A. harassed, thoughtless
 - B. happy, fast-moving
 - C. focused, superior
 - D. busy, unaware

Read the poem:

White sheep, white sheep,
On a blue hill,
When the wind stops,
You all stand still.
When the wind blows,
You walk away slow.
White sheep, white sheep,
Where do you go?

7. Which of the following choices matches the rhyme scheme of this poem?
- A. leap, until, shops, ail, owed, told, sweep, do.
 - B. keep, will, cops, I'll, snows, low, deep, sew.
 - C. cheap, fill, tops, will, knows, low, keep, so.
 - D. weep, all, pop, stile, owes, foe, while, too.
8. What is the poem about?
- A. counting
 - B. sheep
 - C. wind
 - D. clouds

Read the story:

He lived somewhere on the outskirts of town. They said his family was no good, but nobody knew them, really. He was six years old when I first saw him. He was thin and had a white face, with blue shadows round his eyes. He sat on the old tree next to the old railroad track in a t-shirt three sizes too big, playing with a stick—his only toy. Then he began to follow the tracks, jumping from sleeper to sleeper, trailing the stick along the metal tracks. It had been a side branch to a mine that had closed when my grandpa was a boy.

9. What does the passage suggest about the boy?
- A. He is poor.
 - B. He is sick.
 - C. He is bad.
 - D. He is friendly.
10. What does the passage imply about the railroad tracks?
- A. They are overgrown.
 - B. They are no longer used.
 - C. They lead to town.
 - D. They pass by the boy's home.

ANSWERS
Literature - Basic
Quiz 4

1. C The passage is about “part of a cliff” where nature “had arranged” the rocks to look like a face, so it is about an unusual landscape.
2. D By using quotation marks, it suggests that the narrator’s Pa said it with emphasis or in a different tone or voice to make it stand out.
3. A The poem is about the wind which “you cannot see” but hear “roaring” or “whispering” and see the effects of it tossing leaves, flattened grass, and waving flags.
4. C The poem was originally in two stanzas with the second verse beginning in line 5. The rhyme scheme is A, A, B, A, then C, C, A, C.
5. B Although to open up can mean to confess or pour your heart out, it doesn’t mean that in this passage. It means unwrapped or revealed.
6. D The passage says that the secrets of the rooms above are “never dreamed of” by the people in the streets, so they are unaware, and that they are a “restless” crowd which moves “impatiently” suggesting they are busy.
7. C The rhyme scheme of the poem is A (/i:p/), B (/ɪl/), C (/ɒps/), B, D (/əʊs/), E (/əʊ/), A, E, and so C is the correct choice.
8. D The poem is about clouds which “stand still” on the hillside when there is no wind, and disappear when it blows.
9. A The passage suggests that the boy is poor, because he is thin, has someone else’s hand-me-down t-shirt on, and his only toy is a stick.
10. B The passage suggests that the railroad is no longer used since the boy is playing on it. It “had been a side branch” for the mine that closed in the narrator’s grandfather’s day.

Quiz 1

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

I knew I was at the edge of panic. Mrs. Williams would be furious when she got back and found Ghost gone. I had looked everywhere for her. I knew she couldn't have gotten out, but all her usual hiding places were empty. On cold days she would head for the basement and the boiler. If there were strangers in the house, she'd hide under the bed. Most often, she would be curled up asleep on the window ledge in the sun. Now, as I retraced my movements of the night before, I remembered going into the pantry at the end of the enormous, old-fashioned kitchen. Almost daring not to hope, I opened the door.

1. Which part tells us that Ghost is probably a cat?
 - A. I knew she couldn't have gotten out, but all her usual hiding places were empty.
 - B. If there were strangers in the house, she'd hide under the bed.
 - C. On cold days she would head for the basement and the boiler.
 - D. Most often, she would be curled up asleep on the window ledge in the sun.

2. The story is told from which point of view?
 - A. First person
 - B. Second Person
 - C. Third Person from a main character's point of view
 - D. Third Person omniscient narrator.

Read the poem:

In our little boat to glide
On the water blue and wide,
While the sky is smooth and bright,
What could give us more delight?
See the ripples, how they run,
Twinkling brightly in the sun;
While reflected we can see
Shadows of each hill and tree.
See the lilies, round and large,
Floating near the reedy marge,
See the great green dragonfly,
And the swallow skimming by.
See the fishes spring and gleam,
Ere they splash into the stream,
These are all around our boat
On the water whilst we float.

3. What is this poem about?
 - A. Watching a boat glide past on a river
 - B. Enjoying a day playing by a stream
 - C. Seeing things from a boat on a lake
 - D. Taking a boat from inland to the sea

4. Which word does NOT rhyme with "bright"?
 - A. byte
 - B. eight
 - C. hight
 - D. site

Read the story:

It started with a wind that blew in ugly gusts from every quarter of the compass. The wind took delight in snatching people's hats from their heads, and rushed maliciously around corners, taking away the breath of anyone silly enough to be coming the other way. It raced through alleyways and over gardens, tearing leaves from the neatly trimmed hedges and rattling windows in their frames. It sent vicious fingers through coats and shoes and went roaring away, first to the woods above the town, now down to the harbor where the fishing boats strained urgently at their moorings. Old Sam Corcoran glanced at the advancing line of dark, bubbling clouds still far away on the mercury-colored horizon, shook his head, and stumped back to his cottage where he slammed the door and built up the fire.

5. To what does "it" likely refer?
 - A. A day
 - B. A shower
 - C. A storm
 - D. A journey
6. Which choice best characterizes the wind?
 - A. strong and angry
 - B. bad-tempered and cruel
 - C. playful and fast-moving
 - D. cold and out of control

Read the story:

He could feel his heart thumping in his chest, just as the guitar case bumped against his back. 'Don't let me be late. Don't let me be late,' he repeated over and over in his head, the rhythm of the words beating a tattoo in time with his labored breathing. 43rd street. Two blocks to go. He splashed through a puddle, one part of his mind aware of the cold squelch of his right shoe, the other focused on the green crossing sign. 'Stay green. Stay green. Stay green,' he thought, hurtling between a woman with a pushchair who was talking to an old guy with a walking frame. He heard the woman's indignant cry as he shot across the road and reached the safety of the sidewalk an instant before the roar of traffic drowned whatever remark she had made.

7. Where is the narrator most likely going?
 - A. To an audition
 - B. To class
 - C. To lunch
 - D. Home

8. In the context of this passage, the word “shot” could best be replaced by which of the following words?
- A. banged
 - B. fired
 - C. walked
 - D. tore

Read the poem:

Silver, black, silver, black,
Chrome and tiles and “mind the gap.”
A rush of air, a burst of light
Strangers’ faces fly from sight.

9. Where is the poem most likely set?
- A. A bus station
 - B. A subway station
 - C. A railway station
 - D. A gas station
10. Why does the author repeat “silver, black” in the first line?
- A. To explain the colors he can see
 - B. To suggest movement.
 - C. To establish a rhythm.
 - D. To indicate light and dark.

ANSWERS
Literature - Proficient
Quiz 1

1. D This choice is about common behaviour of a cat, so most clearly indicates that this is what the passage is about.
2. A First person uses "I" and "my" and this story starts "I knew I was at the edge of panic" and "I retraced my steps."
3. C The poem talks about what can be seen (lilies, dragonflies, a stream) on something that floats (a boat) and is most likely on a lake because it refers to reflections as "shadows of each hill and tree" which can only be seen on still water.
4. B The vowel sound in bright is "i" /braɪt/, which is the same sound in byte /baɪt/, height /haɪt/, and site /saɪt/, but not the same as the "A" sound in eight /eɪt/.
5. C The passage is most likely about a storm because it "started" with a wind, but there is an "advancing line of dark, bubbling clouds" and the character mentions closing his door and building a fire, which suggests a terrific storm.
6. B The author describes the wind as having "ugly" gusts, rushing "maliciously" around corners, and sending "vicious" fingers of cold through people's clothing, so its character is bad-tempered and cruel.
7. A He is most likely hurrying to an audition, because he clearly has an appointment he doesn't want to miss, and he is carrying a guitar case.
8. D The author says he "shot" across the road, meaning he was going very fast, speeding along like a bullet, so "tore" is the closest in meaning.
9. B Use of 'mind the gap' (between a platform and the tracks) as well as the alternating colors of silver (the train) and black (the windows) as the train moves through the station all indicate this is a subway station.
10. B The repetition suggests the flickering, alternating colors as a train flashes through the tunnels, past the watcher on the platform and hurries on; this indicates movement.

Read the passage:

The voices of the children have died away into silence. The artisan has dropped his tools, the artist has laid aside his brush, the sculptor his chisel. The teeming life of the streets has vanished. Night has spread her wings over the scene.

1. As it is used in this passage, “teeming” most nearly means ——.
 - A. crawling
 - B. swarming
 - C. crowded
 - D. seeming

2. “Night has spread her wings over the scene” is an example of ——.
 - A. personification
 - B. hyperbole
 - C. metaphor
 - D. alliteration

Read the poem:

The cataract strong
Then plunges along,
Striking and raging,
As if a war waging
Its caverns and rocks among;
Rising and leaping,
Sinking and creeping,
Swelling and sweeping,
Showering and springing,
Flying and flinging,
Writhing and ringing,
Eddying and whisking,
Spouting and frisking,
Turning and twisting,
Around and around
With endless rebound;
Smiting and fighting,
A sight to delight in;
Confounding, astounding,
Dizzying, and deafening the ear with its sound.

3. What is the topic of this poem?
 - A. A stream
 - B. A river
 - C. An estuary
 - D. A waterfall

4. The author suggests the speed of the water PRIMARILY ——.
 - A. through the poem's vocabulary
 - B. through the poem's rhythm
 - C. through the poem's rhymes
 - D. through the poem's structure

Read the passage:

The day was warm and sunny. The eaves dripped musically, and the icicles dropping from the roof fell occasionally with pleasant crash. The snow grew slushy, but by afternoon recess, as the boys were playing in their shirt-sleeves, a great cloud began to rise in the west and north—a vast, salty-blue, seamless dome with edges of silvery light. In fifteen minutes, the wind from the south ceased. There was a moment of breathless pause, and then, borne on the wings of the north wind, the streaming clouds of soft, large flakes of snow drove in a level line over the homeward-bound students. By the time they reached home, the wind was a gale, and the snow a vast blinding cloud, filling the air and hiding the road.

5. What is the best title for this passage?
 - A. Changing Weather
 - B. Going Home
 - C. The Snow Storm
 - D. Winter

6. What does the phrase “breathless pause” suggest?
 - A. The students who were playing stopped to catch their breaths.
 - B. There was a quiet moment before the snow started.
 - C. The students were excited by the storm.
 - D. The students stopped breathing.

Read the poem:

I am waiting for a muse, (Or so my teacher says),
Although I think her views (At least on certain days)
Are not at all like mine, and nor are all her ways.
She said that there are nine (Though I think there are only three),
And they surely won't have time to come and visit me.
They're to help me write a poem, although how, I cannot see.
I have a pen and notebook, but the time is ticking by.
(It's awkward when you're stuck, but know you have to try.)
You end up drawing doodles—of fish—(I don't know why).
Yet maybe the muses play a game and Miss was actually right,
Because all at once the words just came as though my pen took flight,
And a poem landed on the page: "The Muse Just Out of Sight".

7. What is the mood of the poem?
- A. Annoyed
 - B. Bored
 - C. Amused
 - D. Thoughtful
8. What do the writer and the teacher disagree about?
- A. How many muses there are
 - B. Everything, all the time
 - C. What the poem should be about
 - D. Whether the writer can write a poem

Read the story:

I ease forward, sliding along the ledge, first in shadow, then in the hot sunlight. Ten feet away, the untidy bundle of twigs sits on the grey granite. A grey feather is plucked from the tender lining and sails down, down, down, dizzying in its descent. Forward again, hands outstretched. But no blue speckled egg waits for me. Instead a fluff of feathers, yellow beaked and fierce eyed, defies me with its look.

9. What is the narrator crawling towards?
- A. A tree
 - B. A camp
 - C. A nest
 - D. A wood pile
10. The passage suggests that the chick feels —
- A. frightened.
 - B. triumphant.
 - C. uneasy.
 - D. scornful.

ANSWERS

Quiz 2

1. C When "teeming" refers to people, it means crowded.
2. B Night is a thing, not a person, but the author refers to "her wings" so night is personified.
3. D The topic is a waterfall (a cataract) where the water is trapped between rocks and rushes, foaming, very fast, downstream.
4. A When the author repeats the pairs of verbs (like "rising and leaping" and "showing and springing") it gives a fast rhythm and makes the poem roll right along, just like the rushing waters.
5. C The weather starts off mild and sunny, but everything turns to a storm. The passage says "clouds of soft, large flakes of snow drove in a level line" and "the wind was a gale, and the snow a vast blinding cloud."
6. B The "breathless pause" is like a breathing space or a moment of quiet calm before the storm begins.
7. C The mood of the poem is very light-hearted, and the writer is amused at the idea that she has written a poem about writing a poem.
8. A The poem says that the teacher says there are 9 muses, but the writer thinks there are only 3.
9. C The passage refers to an "untidy bundle of twigs" which has a "tender lining" of feathers, so we can guess he is trying to reach a nest.
10. B The narrator expects to find an egg, but the chick "defies" him with a look, suggesting it is triumphant about the fact the boy is too late.

Read the passage:

The board trembles under my feet. The water, turquoise, shimmers in the sunlight filtering through the high windows. It seems a long way down. Pale faces turn upward to stare. A bluebottle rams its head stupidly against the dusty glass. If I do this properly, I could get into the state finals. Slowly, I edge forward until my toes curl over the edge of the platform and raise my arms above my head.

1. Who is the main character?
 - A. A spectator
 - B. A surfer
 - C. A competitor
 - D. A swimmer

2. Look at this sentence: "A bluebottle rams its head stupidly against the dusty glass." Why did the author write it?
 - A. To set the scene for what happens
 - B. To suggest the narrator is distracted
 - C. To compare the narrator with the fly
 - D. To hint that the narrator is just as stupid.

Read the poem:

A hand eases along the sand
Beneath the sea,
It spreads questing arms
Towards the rocks,
Terracotta tentacles
In search of home.

A seaside decoration
Lies upon the shore.
It didn't come from the sky
But from the ocean
Torn from its coral home
By the savage tide.

3. The word "questing" in the first stanza most nearly means _____.
A. joking
B. preying on
C. seeking
D. querying
4. In the second stanza, what does the author liken the starfish to?
A. a hand
B. some coral.
C. a star.
D. an ornament.

Read the passage:

It was growing dark as they neared the lake. They'd been delayed waiting for the park rangers to arrive and take Julio back down to civilization. Or what passed for civilization—a dozen cabins for hire to the hunting fraternity and a single, part-time general store. Elliot felt bad that one of the party would spend the weekend in the hospital with a broken ankle, but he was glad the trip hadn't been canceled. The final stretch up to the cabin was a slog done in moonlight, each of the boys a darker shadow against the forest, but it was a moonlight full of grins.

5. What does the story suggest about the cabin?
- A. It is quite remote.
 - B. It belonged to Julio.
 - C. It is used for hunting.
 - D. Elliot doesn't want to go there.
6. Which choice BEST sums up how the boys feel when they reach the cabin?
- A. Bad: one of them didn't make it
 - B. Pleased: the trip wasn't canceled
 - C. Exhausted: the last stretch was hard work
 - D. Happy: they achieved their goal

Read the poem:

The world has lost her blues
Her yellows and reds and rainbows
For the palette of the moon
In white and silver glows.
My bed is striped in steely bars
From the shining window panes
And there's black and white and pewter
And frosty silken skeins
Touched now and then with amber
From passing motor cars
Whose lights add golden highlights
Like tiny mobile stars.

7. What is the best title for the poem?
- A. No Rainbows at Night
 - B. Moonlight in the City
 - C. The Colors of Night
 - D. After Dark
8. What are the “tiny mobile stars” the poet refers to?
- A. Shooting stars
 - B. Streetlights
 - C. Windows
 - D. Reflections

Read the story:

Some people have no curiosity at all. My sister Cory was like that. She couldn't draw a verbal picture of what someone looked like or what kind of person they were. She'd been home the whole day, but when I asked her about the new neighbors, my questions neither interested nor puzzled her. They were called Latimer, they had lived in Port Royal, the mom was a teacher, the dad was some kind of federal agent and there was a son called Radson. What more could I possibly want to know?

9. What does “draw a verbal picture” mean?
- A. explain
 - B. discuss
 - C. describe
 - D. decide
10. How does the narrator feel about her sister's lack of curiosity?
- A. angry
 - B. concerned
 - C. amused
 - D. baffled

ANSWERS

Quiz 3

1. C The character at the end of the dive board is clearly a competitor, because he/she "could get into the state finals."
2. B The diver's mind is all over the place: on the trembling board, the faces of spectators, on the state finals. Adding the line about the bluebottle (which has nothing to do with the competition) emphasizes that.
3. C "Questing" means searching for or seeking.
4. D The author refers to the dead, dried starfish as "A Christmas decoration". So, it is being likened to an ornament you would hang on a tree.
5. A The passage says that they'd been delaying in a place that "passed for civilization" even before they began the climb to the cabin, so it is far from anywhere or "remote."
6. D Although all of the emotions are mentioned, the overriding one is happiness that they achieved their goal since the passage says that they reached the cabin by a moonlight that was "full of grins."
7. B The poem is clearly about a moonlit night as it refers to the "moon's palette" or paint box of silvery colors, and it also takes place in a place where there is traffic, so "Moonlight in the City" is the best option.
8. D The tiny mobile stars are the flashes of light reflected from the "amber" lights of passing motor cars that add "golden highlights" on things the speaker can see in his room.
9. C If you draw a verbal picture it's a word picture or a description.
10. D The narrator is baffled by her sister's lack of curiosity: she doesn't understand it at all. This is indicated by the narrator's sarcastic rhetorical question at the end of the passage.

Quiz 4

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

We pause at the top of the slope, looking across the park. Sol rolls back and forth, one foot on the ground, gripping the handlebars. BJ squints, assessing the path. A lady and her dog head into the trees on the right. A mom and two kids play on the swings way over on the left. Clear. I glance at them and we exchange a nod. Then, with a whoop, we're off, pedaling faster and faster, grins plastered to our faces by the wind, hair tugged into tangles. Legs straight out, I keep free of the whirring pedals as we hurtle down the hill at breakneck speed, and oh, the glory of it!

1. It may be inferred from the passage that the boys are on _____.
 - A. foot
 - B. bikes
 - C. skateboards
 - D. scooters

2. What is it that the narrator glories in?
 - A. his freedom
 - B. his bike
 - C. his friends
 - D. his speed

Read the poem:

Where I go, he follows me
One step ahead, or two or three,
Sometimes to the right or left is he,
But all the day long, he's after me.

Sometimes he seems as tall as can be
But he's terribly thin and more agile than me,
Hiding behind clouds when I stop to see
If he's under the bench or behind a tree.

He has his own bike and he's quite carefree
Dashing about in the sun like a bee
And even at night when we've eaten our tea
While the lights are on, he's following me.

He's a strange companion, fit as a flea
And only at noon and in darkness are we
Apart from each other, I and he
Me and the one who's following me.

3. What is the poem about?
 - A. an invisible friend
 - B. the narrator's mind
 - C. the narrator's shadow
 - D. the narrator's conscience

4. "like a bee" and "as a flea" are examples of _____.
 - A. alliteration
 - B. simile
 - C. metaphor
 - D. personification

Read the passage:

The train we had to take left at 4 a.m., and Mom had us up two hours before as we lived so far from the station... so far from anywhere. It was a still, summer night. The world seemed wrapped in a comforter of silence and darkness. There was a sliver of a moon above the pines like the rind of a white squash. It wasn't enough to dim the stars which spread so thickly in places it looked like someone had smeared white cotton candy against a black tablecloth.

5. Based on the passage, which of the following is FALSE?
- A. The night was clear.
 - B. There was a new moon.
 - C. The narrator lives in a distant city.
 - D. The narrator got up at around 2 am.
6. How does the narrator feel about being out at night?
- A. comfortable
 - B. excited
 - C. uneasy
 - D. annoyed

Read the poem:

Yesterday is far away,
Its joys and sorrows fled
Tomorrow's fears may not appear:
We cannot see ahead.
The only thing we have is NOW
We can only shape today.
So make the present all you can
Make, hay, make hay, make hay.

7. What is the purpose of this poem?
- A. to inform
 - B. to inspire
 - C. to persuade
 - D. to describe
8. The poem refers to which proverb?
- A. Live for today for tomorrow never comes
 - B. A swarm in May is worth a load of hay
 - C. Make hay while the sun shines
 - D. Haste makes waste

Read the story:

With Jones and Ellis alongside, I galloped rapidly through the rank grasses toward the base of the hills. From one of their openings descended a deep ravine, widening as it spilled out on the prairie. Entering, dirt flying in a choking cloud, we were at once surrounded by stark red-stone buttes. Half of their bulbous edges were bare; the rest were sparsely populated by dry grass and spiky, uncouth plants that oozed white sap and malice.

9. To what does "their" refer?
- A. the hills
 - B. the grasses
 - C. Jones and Ellis
 - D. the openings
10. Which word best described the environment in which the riders find themselves?
- A. arid
 - B. dark
 - C. hostile
 - D. stunning

ANSWERS
Literature - Proficient
Quiz 4

1. B The passage says that that Sol “rolls” back and forth, suggesting wheels, and the passage tells us that they have “handlebars” and “pedals,” meaning a bicycle.
2. D The final sentence refers to the boys hurtling “down the hill at breakneck speed” before adding “and oh the glory of it!,” which means he is referring to the speed.
3. C The poem is about the narrator’s shadow that “hides” when there are clouds, but follows the speaker even when a lamp is lit and is only absent at noon (when the sun is overhead and you don’t have a shadow) or in the dark.
4. B A simile is a description of something made by comparing it to something else using “as” or “like.”
5. C The passage says that the narrator was woken early because they live so far from the station and “so far from anywhere,” so they can’t live in a city.
6. A The narrator says the night was warm and like being “wrapped in a comforter,” which is a nice feeling, suggesting the narrator feels comfortable
7. D The purpose of the poem is to urge people to make the most of today, shown in the repetition of “make hay,” so it is to persuade.
8. C The proverb is “Make hay while the sun shines”—in other words, make the most of NOW.
9. A The openings are in the hills, and it is through one of these that the riders go, so “their” refers to the hills.
10. C The best description is hostile, because not only is it dry and dusty, the plants are described as uncouth and ooze “white sap and malice.”

Quiz 1

Directions: Identify the choice that best completes the statement or answers the question.

Read the passage:

Tecumseh woke early. The stillness of the night clung to the sloping walls of the teepee. Stillness, but not silence. Insects creaked and chattered in the darkness. A log on the fire in the center of the camp popped and a burned log subsided. Somewhere up on the high plains a wolf howled, and a wildcat yowled in anger or frustration. He sat up, remembering. What a gathering! The hypnotic rhythm of the traditional chants... Lalawatheeka's mysterious songs and the intricate patterns of dancing feet. They were sleeping now. Now was his chance to live up to his name: panther crossing. Silently, Tecumseh took his spear from beneath his bedroll, slipped on his moccasins and slid noiselessly into the silver promise of dawn.

1. Which part best tells us that Tecumseh is probably a Native American?
 - A. The stillness of the night clung to the sloping walls of the teepee.
 - B. What a gathering! The hypnotic rhythm of the traditional chants...
 - C. Lalawatheeka's mysterious songs and the intricate patterns of dancing feet.
 - D. Now was his chance to live up to his name: panther crossing.

2. What most likely happens next?
 - A. Tecumseh goes back to sleep.
 - B. Tecumseh wakes the rest of his people.
 - C. Tecumseh starts breakfast.
 - D. Tecumseh goes hunting.

Read the haiku by Natsume Soseki:

The lamp once out
Cool stars enter
The window frame.

3. What does “cool stars enter the window frame” mean?
 - A. As the night goes on, what the author sees through the window changes.
 - B. Now there is no light in the room, the author can see the stars through the window.
 - C. The stars are fireflies, which enter the room once the lamp is out.
 - D. When the lamp is out, the starlight fill’s the author’s room with light.
4. In the context of this poem, what does “cool” mean?
 - A. Trendy
 - B. Freezing
 - C. Calm
 - D. Remote

Read the passage:

Jack scowled over his shoulder. “Come on!” he hissed. Three pale faces stared back at him, picked out in brilliant moonlight. Jack rolled his eyes. “City kids,” he muttered.

The three cousins hunched their shoulders, the nighttime sounds wholly unfamiliar. They kept close, wondering that what had seemed such a good idea this morning seemed madness at night. What if Uncle Colly found out? Five more minutes of anxious shuffling through dry grass and over tree roots close behind Jack, and then they were there, faced with a tall brick wall pierced by a large, arched doorway. It was ajar. Wordlessly, Jack wormed his way through the narrow gap, gesturing urgently for them to follow. They had no choice.

5. How do the cousins feel about their nighttime adventure?
 - A. Excited
 - B. Enthusiastic
 - C. Nervous
 - D. Scared

6. Why do the cousins have “no choice” but to follow Jack?
- A. They had promised they would.
 - B. They were afraid Uncle Colly would catch them if they didn’t.
 - C. They would get lost without Jack to guide them.
 - D. They couldn’t go back the way they had come.

Read the passage:

The sun beat down on the sidewalk, sending up shimmering ripples of air. Heat pooled on the black top, lakes of heat as far as the eye could see. Brad stepped from one paving slab to another, avoiding the cracks. He’d always avoided the cracks. When he was little Jed had told him if you stepped on a crack the devil would come out and grab you, but that was just plain silly. Mind, that was before Jed had disappeared. What was it now? Two months? Nobody had seen or heard of him since that day in May when he’d slammed his skateboard into Mayor Denton’s prized Buick and there’d been a terrible row.

7. The author likens the heat to what?
- A. The sidewalk
 - B. Water
 - C. Air rising
 - D. Cracks in the sidewalk.
8. What is implied about Jed?
- A. Something has happened to him.
 - B. He is badly behaved.
 - C. His father is in trouble.
 - D. Brad is going to find him.

Read the poem:

A lonely kind of iceberg, softened by the blue,
A regiment of soldiers, swiftly marching through,
Streamers from a mare's tail, a thunderhead or two,
Millions of pictures up there, but none of them like you.

9. What is the "blue" mentioned in the first line?
- A. The sea
 - B. Sadness
 - C. Paint
 - D. The sky
10. What is the central idea of this poem?
- A. Pictures seen in the sky are better than reality.
 - B. Clouds come in all shapes and sizes.
 - C. The imagination can make all kinds from clouds.
 - D. There is nobody quite like you.

ANSWERS
Literature - Advanced
Quiz 1

1. A A tepee is most associated with Native American culture, so this is the greatest clue.
2. D Tecumseh refers to his name (panther crossing—a hunting cat) then he takes up his spear, so it is most likely he is going hunting.
3. B With a light on, it is impossible to see anything in the night sky. Once the light is out, the stars outside the window are visible.
4. D The cool stars are aloof, remote, or distant.
5. C The cousins spend five “anxious” minutes following, they are worried about Uncle Colly finding out what they’re doing, and the nighttime sounds are unfamiliar, so we can conclude that the cousins are nervous.
6. C The cousins are clearly from the city, and not familiar with the territory or being out at night in the country. When Jack vanishes inside the walled enclosure, they have to follow.
7. B The author says the heat sends up shimmering “ripples” and that it “pooled” on the black top and formed “lakes of heat”, so he is clearly likening it to water.
8. A The passage says Jed had damaged the Mayor’s car two months ago, there’d been a terrible row and that nobody had seen him since, implying something has happened to him.
9. D The “blue” is the blue of the sky which makes the single clouds less like an iceberg.
10. C Our imaginations can see a single cloud as a lonely iceberg, a row of clouds like a regiment of marching soldiers and also see thunder clouds and wisps of clouds, so we can make all kinds of pictures from them—even if we can’t see the face of a loved one up there.

Read the passage:

Rollers shoulder their way shoreward, throwing up surfers and seaweed. In the shallows the water boils like milk towards the wreck of yesterday's tide: brown-green wrack, plastic bottles, a flip flop, pieces of other people's lives. Turbo noses into the piles, sniffs a piece of tarred rope and moves on, urging me to follow. I obey.

1. Which of the following verbs is used literally?
 - A. Shoulder
 - B. Throw up
 - C. Boil
 - D. Obey

2. Which of the following is the best evidence that Turbo is a dog?
 - A. Turbo noses into piles.
 - B. Turbo sniffs a piece of rope.
 - C. Turbo moves on.
 - D. Turbo urges me to follow.

Read the poem:

with all its different moods
the wind is like a child first gentle as a feather then gusting loud and wild one moment tossing blossom gently on the breeze next a ravening hurricane uprooting homes and trees and like a child asleep at night the wind will cease and until the sun comes up
the world will be at peace

3. Which of the following techniques does the author NOT use?
 - A. Rhythm
 - B. Rhyme
 - C. Meter
 - D. Punctuation

4. What does the poet imply about children?
 - A. They are always changing.
 - B. They can play nicely outside.
 - C. They are only quiet when they're asleep.
 - D. They are free as the wind.

Read the passage:

The sightless windows were dark, and the paint was peeling. Baz tried the doorknob. It turned, but the door seemed stuck. He leaned against it and shoved. Pieces of paint, green with cherry-red, blue, and black beneath, flaked off and stuck to his sweater. The door yielded reluctantly, and he had to give it several hard jerks before it opened wide enough for him to squeeze through. Inside, his sneakers left a trail of damp footprints across the dusty floor.

5. The flakes of paint tell us all of the following about the door EXCEPT:

- A. It is probably old as it has been repainted many times.
- B. It used to be a different color.
- C. It is neglected, because the paint is flaking.
- D. It has rusty hinges making it stiff to open.

6. Which of the following is most likely FALSE?

- A. Baz is a thief.
- B. It has been raining.
- C. The house is abandoned.
- D. The door wasn't locked.

Read the poem:

The goldenrod is yellow;
The corn is turning brown;
The trees in apple orchards
With fruit are bending down.
The sedges flaunt their harvest
In every meadow-nook;
And asters by the brookside
Make asters in the brook.

7. What is the poem's theme?
- A. Tranquility
 - B. Autumn
 - C. Flowers
 - D. The countryside
8. The last two lines refer to what?
- A. A flower
 - B. An idea
 - C. A reflection
 - D. An image

Read the story:

Agatha glared at the trolley full of books and stuck her tongue out at Miss Martin's retreating back. It wasn't her fault that she'd misunderstood what she had to talk about in class. As far as she was concerned the "Big Mac" was a tasty hamburger, not some stupid play by Shakespeare. So that's why she was here in the library after school tasked with putting all that day's borrowed books in the right places.

9. What is Agatha's mood?
- A. Resentful
 - B. Furious
 - C. Puzzled
 - D. Relaxed
10. The passage most likely alludes to:
- A. Hamlet
 - B. Macbeth
 - C. Othello
 - D. Romeo and Juliet

ANSWERS
Literature - Advanced
Quiz 2

1. B The passage means that the powerful waves literally throw surfers and seaweed up onto the beach. All the other verbs are used figuratively.
2. A The fact that Turbo noses (pushed his nose into) piles of rubbish that have been cast up by the tide suggests he is a dog.
3. D Although deliberate (the only pause is when you reach the end echoing the idea of peace) the poem uses no punctuation.
4. C The poem says that “at night the wind will cease” and everything will be peaceful until morning. So by saying “just like a child asleep” it suggests children are only quiet when asleep.
5. D Although we can tell from the passage that the door is stiff and hard to push, it is NOT the flakes of paint that tell us that.
6. A The passage doesn’t tell us anything about Baz’s intentions, and it implies the house is old and empty, so he is unlikely to be a thief.
7. B The poem refers to corn “turning brown” (ripening), fruit “bending down”, and to “harvest”, so it is autumn and its fruitfulness.
8. C Something by the water’s edge seen in the water is a reflection.
9. A The passage suggests that Miss Martin has asked Agatha to sort out the trolley of books as a punishment, but Agatha thinks it is unfair, because her instructions were unclear, so she is resentful.
10. B The passage says that Agatha mistook the presentation topic of “Big Mac” and talked about hamburgers whereas her teacher wanted her to talk about a Shakespeare play: Macbeth is the only one that could be mistaken.

Read the passage:

The sidewalks gasped under the relentless sun. Office blocks threw daggers of light across broiling air and the city sank into breathless torpor. Nothing moved. The stray cats and mongrel dogs had found somewhere cool and dark to lie up for the day. There were few pedestrians in this part of the neighborhood, and even the sleek corporate cars seem to stop coming, waiting for the scant relief of dusk.

1. Which of the following techniques does the author use?
 - A. Personification
 - B. Alliteration
 - C. Similes
 - D. Exaggeration

2. What does the word "torpor" most likely mean?
 - A. fury
 - B. sleep
 - C. activity
 - D. exhaustion

Read the poem:

The car bumps over a crossing
Jerking me awake
More awake.
It is dark now.
There are trees
Dark wisps that flash past, striping the night.
Now and again there's a lighted window,
Who lives there?
Who are they?
What are they doing?
Do they know I touched them with my eyes
Just once
For a moment
As the car sped by?

3. What does the phrase "striping the night" refer to?
 - A. Lighted windows.
 - B. Car headlights
 - C. The narrator blinking
 - D. Passing tree trunks

4. The main idea of the poem is _____.
 - A. how many people make journeys at night.
 - B. how you can fall asleep in the car without knowing it.
 - C. how you sometimes feel a connection to strangers.
 - D. how small people feel in the outside world.

Read the passage:

The boiler gave a last asthmatic sputter, gurgled one last time, and lapsed into silence. Dust motes sparked through the empty air as the last packing case was taken away. Floorboards creaked, settling into their worn, familiar shapes. The door closed for the last time, the key turned, and the empty windows stood, looking blankly out into the sunlit street. For a moment, the old house was inclined to despair, but it remembered the shiny new "For Sale" sign outside. Soon new people would come, and it would stop being just a house and become a home again.

5. The author personifies all of the following EXCEPT:
- A. The floorboards
 - B. The windows
 - C. The house
 - D. The boiler
6. Which of these can NOT be inferred from the passage?
- A. It is a sunny day.
 - B. A family has just moved out of the house.
 - C. The house is up for sale.
 - D. The house is old.

Read the poem:

Push everything away.
Each person, or sound
All the worries
Complaints...
Everything.

Pull apart from the world
Empty it of voices
All of them
Chattering
Endlessly.

Pay attention to your heart
Enjoy the stillness
Accept dreams
Cherish
Everyone

7. What is the best title for the poem?

- A. Thoughts
- B. Meditation
- C. Life
- D. Daydreams

8. What is it that the author longs for?

- A. Silence
- B. Peace
- C. Sleep
- D. Hope

Read the story:

Riding the bus on the same route, day after day, is an odd mixture of variety and sameness. I pass the same shops, the same green-shuttered house at the corner of Wilson and 9th, the same car lot with its perpetual "Sale Now On" sign. Yet the woman with the pushchair waiting at the crossing is different today than yesterday's grandfather bending over a stick, and the silver Toyota that pulls alongside at the railroad crossing is different to the black SUV that was waiting there the day before.

9. What is the main idea of this passage?

- A. One bus route is much like another.
- B. Each day resembles the next, but the details change.
- C. No two days are exactly alike.
- D. Things are constant, but people change.

10. What does the author imply by referring to the "perpetual" for sale sign?

- A. The sale is always on.
- B. The sign has been forgotten.
- C. There isn't really a sale at all.
- D. The lot always offers great deals.

ANSWERS
Literature - Advanced
Quiz 3

1. A The author gives human qualities to the sidewalks (which gasped) and the office blocks (which threw daggers of light). Buildings can't gasp or throw things.
2. D The passage describes a day so hot that nothing moves, so torpor means exhaustion. "Breathless" torpor helps to describe exhaustion.
3. D As the car passes the trees, the trunks are a slightly different color to the general darkness, which makes a pattern of black and not-quite-black, giving a striped effect.
4. C The questions in the poem (Who are they? What are they doing?) suggest that the author feels a connection to the people she sees in lighted windows as the car drives through the night. She wonders about their lives.
5. A The author says that the floorboards creaked and settled into their familiar shapes, but that IS what floorboards do—they haven't been given human qualities, so the author didn't personify them.
6. B We can infer that somebody has moved out (or been moved out) as the last packing case is collected and the door locked, but we can't know that it is a family.
7. B The best title is "Meditation," which means thinking about things very deeply, and since the author wants worry and concern and any noise to be left aside, it suggests he wants space to think hard.
8. A The author says push everything away including "each sound" in the first stanza and says he wants to pull back from the world and "empty of voices" and "chattering", so he mostly wants silence in order to think.
9. C The main idea is that although the bust route is the same, each day is slightly different, with different people, and different vehicles.
10. C The passage says that the sign is "perpetual" or always there, which suggests it isn't a real sale at all—just a sign to entice customers.

Read the passage:

I love riding the El, although you can't see much of the crowded sidewalks of the city. It is simply a rush of the same people—hurrying this way or that on the same errands, doing the same shopping or eating at the same restaurants. It is a kaleidoscope with infinite combinations but the same effects. You see it today, and it is the same as yesterday. Occasionally in the multitude you hit upon something different, or an odd detail, but the general effect is one of sameness.

1. How would the author describe the view from the El?
 - A. colorful
 - B. interesting
 - C. repetitive
 - D. enjoyable

2. "It is a kaleidoscope with infinite combinations but the same effects."
This line explains the _____ the author is trying to explain.
 - A. paradox
 - B. dilemma
 - C. irony
 - D. anomaly

Read the poem:

It gleams.
Colors glint in the light from the lamp.
Gold winks on an edge.
Am I the first to open this treasure box?
It is small... a few inches wide.
Held in one hand, it weighs little
For all the gems it holds.
And around me, others.
Row upon row
Shelf upon shelf
Of treasure-boxes.
Waiting.

3. What is the "treasure" referred to?
- A. gold
 - B. gems
 - C. money
 - D. words
4. Where is the narrator?
- A. At home
 - B. In a store
 - C. At school
 - D. In a library

Read the passage:

Millie stood, one hand clutching Mopsie, her disreputable rabbit, the other to her face, where she resolutely stuck her thumb in her mouth. She twirled from side to side, watching me defiantly. I glared back at her.

"Mom said," I began and then sighed. Millie, being Millie, that tactic wasn't going to work. Mules weren't in it. "Oh well," I said, deliberately nonchalant. "It's up to you." I turned and went back inside, letting the screen door close behind me, and leaving her standing on the patchy grass at the bottom of the porch steps.

5. What does the passage suggest about Millie's nature?
- A. She's silly.
 - B. She's timid.
 - C. She's stubborn.
 - D. She's aggressive.
6. What is most likely to happen next?
- A. Millie will follow her sister indoors.
 - B. Mom will come out and speak to Millie.
 - C. Millie's sister will come out and try again.
 - D. Millie will go off and play with Mopsie.

Read the poem:

One: drape.
It hangs limp, like the scarf Mom wears on Sundays.
Two: a loose knot.
It lies uncertainly, neither one thing nor another, questioning.
Three: bring the fat end across the front and through the middle.
It writhes like an unruly serpent, confused by the mirror.
It squirms first left and right, hands not obeying.
Four: push the end through the front. It's called a half Windsor.
I wonder what happened to the other half.
It looked easy when Dad did it.

7. What is the main idea of the passage?
- A. How to tie a tie
 - B. Tying a tie is harder than it looks.
 - C. Ties are similar to scarves.
 - D. Things look different in a mirror.
8. What does the word "questioning" likely refer to?
- A. The person tying the tie questions how it should be done.
 - B. The end of the tie moves about trying to discover where to go.
 - C. The tie ends up in the shape of a question mark, half done.
 - D. The narrator's mother questions whether she should help.

Read the story:

There was a solid thump. I felt the impact up my arm to my shoulder, but paid it no attention. My eyes were on the ball. It flew, up, up, up—a speck of dark against the empty blue sky. The crowd seemed to hush and then I was slammed back to reality with coach yelling at me to run. Run! First base.... Second... I could already see fielders running backwards, hands outstretched, eyes on the soaring ball. Third base... But amidst the roar of the crowd I heard the slam of leather on leather. With every ounce of strength I had, I launched myself at the home plate, feeling dirt scraping the skin from my arms as I slid the last few feet.

9. What is the theme of this passage?
- A. Success
 - B. Endeavor
 - C. Youth
 - D. Disappointment
10. What can we infer about the thump referred to in the first line?
- A. It is probably the sound of the fielder, catching the ball in a glove.
 - B. It is probably the sound of the narrator being jostled by the backstop.
 - C. It is probably the sound of the audience clapping and stamping their feet.
 - D. It is probably the sound of the ball being struck by the narrator's bat.

ANSWERS
Literature - Advanced
Quiz 4

1. C The author refers to the “same people” and the “same shops” and the “same restaurants.” So, he would likely describe the view from the El and repetitive.
2. A The line describes a paradox: something which seems absurd but is true. The author says that there are a million combinations (of things to see) but the effect is the same.
3. D The treasure is words. The narrator is holding a book (treasure box) in his hand and “all the gems it holds” are words.
4. D The narrator is in a library as he is surrounded by “treasure boxes” (books) and there are “row upon row / shelf upon shelf” of others.
5. C The passage suggests that Millie is stubborn as she glares at her sister “defiantly” and her sister says, “Mules weren’t in it” and mules have a reputation for stubbornness.
6. A The sister changes tactic and instead of trying to persuade her sister, she says “It’s up to you” as though she’ll miss out on something if she doesn’t come inside, so she will probably follow.
7. B The passage gives the steps to tying a tie, but the subject’s “hands not obeying” means he struggles to make the knot, even though “it looked easy when Dad did it.”
8. C The passage says that the tie “lies there” so it is likely that the shape against the subject’s chest is that of a question mark.
9. B Having hit the ball as hard as can be and running like crazy, the narrator “with every ounce of strength” stretched out for the home plate, desperate to win despite losing some skin. The passage is about effort or trying to achieve something: endeavor.
10. D Since this is the first thing that happens, and the narrator then watches the ball going “up, up, up” then it is most likely the sound of the baseball bat whacking the ball.

Read the passage to answer questions 5 and 6.

In every neighborhood of New York you can find bodegas. There are ten thousand of them. The name is Spanish and means store-room. The first bodega-owners were Hispanic and they opened up small convenience stores in the 1930s and 1940s to supply goods to fellow immigrants. Nowadays bodegas sell everything from candy and soda to laundry detergent and shampoo. Some of them include a deli counter or even a coffee counter, and they are usually open 24/7. This makes them especially useful for shift workers who may have to pick up a snack at 4 am in the morning while the rest of us are asleep.

5. The passage implies that:
- A. Bodega-owners may not be Hispanic nowadays.
 - B. Bodegas are no longer convenience stores.
 - C. Bodegas are only found in New York.
 - D. Bodegas are usually eating places as well as shops.

6. When are bodegas generally open?

Across the lonely beach we flit,
One little sandpiper and I,
And fast I gather, bit by bit,
The scattered driftwood, bleached and dry.
The wild waves reach their hands for it,
The wild wind raves, the tide runs high,
As up and down the beach we flit,
One little sandpiper and I.

— Celia Thaxter

Read the passage to answer questions 14 and 15.

Not today, thought Emily, staring out across the restless waves. That was the problem with living in a lighthouse. The sea was heaving up and down like some great sea monster was shaking out its duvet the way Mom did on laundry day. It rose up in lumps and disappeared into hollows, and now and again a mad seagull dove into the water and rose into the pencilly sky with an aluminum foil fish in its mouth. Tuesday. Freya and Sam would probably be at the mall today, she mused. Was there a word "pencilly"? There should be, because the sky had the same color as when you rubbed a pencil over and over on the same piece of paper.

14. Why does Emily say to herself "Not today"?
- A. She can't leave the lighthouse today.
 - B. Seagulls were dive bombing her.
 - C. Her mom won't do laundry today.
 - D. Her friends won't be at the mall today.
15. What does "aluminum foil fish" suggest?
- A. The gulls are picking up garbage from the sea.
 - B. The fish are shining like metal foil.
 - C. The fish are grey like the sky and the sea.
 - D. Fishing lures are attracting the gulls.
16. Elliot decided to focus on poetry that semester. "Focus" probably means:
- A. direct
 - B. discuss
 - C. concentrate
 - D. control

Read the passage to answer questions 17 and 18.

Woad is a blue dye used to color cloth. Nowadays factories often use synthetic dyes, but woad is a natural dye and comes from a plant. It has been used for millennia, and samples have been found in 10th century Viking ships and in Egyptian tombs 4,000 years old. Woad plants were introduced into the United States by settlers in Plymouth in the early 1600s. Dyer's Woad (Isatis tinctoria) reached the west coast in the 1850s but has now spread all over America and become a nuisance.

17. The word "synthetic" most nearly means:
- A. fake
 - B. chemical
 - C. man-made
 - D. authentic
18. According to the passage, there has been woad growing in America _____.
- A. for 4,000 years
 - B. since the Vikings arrived.
 - C. for the last two centuries.
 - D. since the 1600s.
19. Which choice is most nearly opposite the underlined word?
- The United States has a vast central plain.
- A. considerable
 - B. empty
 - C. minute
 - D. effective

Read the passage to answer questions 20 and 21.

Trees loomed up out of white nothingness. They appeared like sentries on duty and vanished when I turned to look back. Sabre nudged my leg, and then took a few paces forward, his black muzzle close to the well-trodden path through the woods that led to the creek. His tail plumed grey as he turned to look back at me. Then he went back to the trail, coat flecked with damp. We are the only two out here. I came to restore my grandpa's old cabin, and to maybe detect for any gold left behind. They said the claim had been worked out before my dad was born, but who knows?

20. Which part suggests the weather is foggy?
- A. Trees loomed up out of white nothingness.
 - B. They appeared like sentries on duty and vanished when I turned to look back.
 - C. His tail plumed grey as he turned to look back at me.

Read the passage to answer questions 23 and 24.

In our solar system, all the planets orbit the Sun, which is a star. There are billions of stars in our galaxy. Around 2,500 of them have their own planets, which are known as exoplanets. NASA is studying them because there may be a few that are just like Earth and could be habitable. They need to be close enough to their sun that any water doesn't freeze, but not so close that any life there would fry. An exoplanet with just the right conditions is called a "Goldilocks" planet because it is not too hot, and not too cold, but just right. So far, NASA has discovered seventeen of them.

23. What does the passage suggest about exoplanets?
- A. They exist in other galaxies.
 - B. There are billions of them.
 - C. People can live on them.
 - D. They orbit the Sun.
24. Where does the nickname "Goldilocks" come from?
- A. A famous actor
 - B. A character in a story
 - C. An important scientist
 - D. A particular NASA color
25. If cloak is pronounced /klohk/ , which word is pronounced /slohp/?
- A. slip
 - B. slap
 - C. slop
 - D. slope

Read the passage to answer questions 26 and 27.

Ganan rested the paddle across his knees and let the canoe drift into the shade of the great boughs that overhung the riverbank. It was hot today; so hot metal burned. The sky wasn't even breathing. No leaves stirred and it was utterly silent, as though even the insects were faint with heat. The canoe lay balanced, like a bead of mercury on a glass slide, the same above as below.

26. The sentence "The sky wasn't even breathing" serves to
- A. warn that something is going to happen.
 - B. suggest that there wasn't the slightest wind.
 - C. give the passage a sense of menace.
 - D. imply that it wasn't raining as usual.
27. The expression "the same above as below" refers to:
- A. the canoe's ability to float.
 - B. the stillness.
 - C. the color of the water.
 - D. the canoe's reflection.
28. Which suffix turns "purpose" into an adjective?
- A. -able
 - B. -ness
 - C. -ful
 - D. -ious

Discount: Children under 11, Adults over 60, Students with Student ID. Midweek Madness: Wednesdays all day. Off-peak: All day Mondays (except public holidays) and before 6pm Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Peak: All other days and times.

29. Grandpa takes his two grandchildren to the cinema and pays $18.00 for three tickets. What can we infer from the notice?
- A. They have discount tickets.
 - B. They go off peak.
 - C. It is not a bank holiday.
 - D. They visit on Wednesday.
30. What does the new price structure suggest about Wednesdays?
- A. The cinema shows less popular movies on Wednesdays.
 - B. Not many people like to watch movies on Wednesday evenings.
 - C. Not many people were visiting the cinema on Wednesdays.
 - D. Wednesdays are more popular with older people.
31. The curry was not too spicy. Which word can replace the underlined portion?
- A. hot
 - B. weak
 - C. faint
 - D. mild

Read the passage to answer questions 32 and 33.

They caught up with me in the 7th Precinct. It's harder to slip between realities when people are firing at you, but it's the only way to survive. Think of it this way. When you read a book, you get to the end of the page and then turn over and read the words on the other side. You don't see all the pages in between, because you only exist in one reality: we exist in all of them. Time doesn't mean much to us, or else it means everything. You have it as the fourth dimension, but it isn't. Where your scientists went wrong is in believing that time only moves in one direction.

32. Who is telling the story?
- A. The main character in first person
 - B. A narrator using second person.
 - C. Both the main character and a narrator.
 - D. A third person narrator who isn't part of the story.
33. What type of story is this?
- A. Romance
 - B. Science Fiction
 - C. Fantasy
 - D. Mystery
34. Which word does NOT rhyme with "ease"?
- A. grease
 - B. tease
 - C. seize
 - D. breeze

Read the passage to answer questions 35 and 36.

Trees can live a long, long time. Bristlecone pines are among the oldest individual trees growing anywhere in the world. One, called Methuselah, growing in the White Mountains of Inyo County, California, has been dated to more than 4,800 years old, which means it had been growing for 300 years before the pyramids were built! However, there are clonal trees which are even older. Those are trees which are connected by roots, and although the trees that push up from underground may only be a few hundred years old, the colony itself can survive for thousands of years. One colony of quaking aspens in Utah has been going for 80,000 years.

35. What is the best title for this passage?
- A. As old as Methuselah
 - B. Tree Colonies
 - C. How Long do Trees Live?
 - D. The history of Trees
36. As it is used in this passage, what does “individual” mean?
- A. thing
 - B. special
 - C. separate
 - D. characteristic
37. Which prefix makes the opposite of “lock”?
- A. dis-
 - B. re-
 - C. fore-
 - D. un-

ANSWERS
Reading – Basic
Test 1

1. B A station is a place you go to catch a train, whereas the others are kinds of transport.
2. D The poem is about breakfast as it describes possible breakfast foods and the last letter of each line spells out the word “breakfast.”
3. C The sixth line says, “No time—I need to be off,” which suggests the speaker is late.
4. B If something is “due” it means that is the time it must be done by, so you can finish before something is due (also when it is due or after it is due) , but not either, how or why it is due.
5. A The passage says: “The first bodega-owners were Hispanic,” suggesting that later ones may not be, otherwise it would just say “Bodega owners are Hispanic.”
6. B The passage says: “they are usually open 24/7” meaning 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, or all the time. (This is not the same as “all day, every day” as they are open all night too!)
7. C The word “ingenious” meaning clever or invented has three syllables and is stressed on the second: /in-jeen-yuhs/
8. B “Flit” means to move quickly, or dart from one place to another, like a bird would do, running from place to place.
9. C The poem says: “The wild waves reach their hands for it [driftwood],” but waves don’t have hands—people do, so this is an example of personification.
10. A Shack begins with the same digraph as ship, /sh/ and ends with the same digraph as back, /ck/.
11. C The key shows most of the map as farmland growing citrus fruit. The oldest part of the settlement (18th century) was built around a fort (1765), and was on a sea inlet, so we can guess that Petertown began as a port to export fruit grown in the surrounding area.
12. D The 18th century settlement, around Fort Peter, is on the north shore of the estuary.
13. D If something runs parallel it runs in the same way. E.g. Railroad tracks run parallel.

14. A The passage says: "Not today, thought Emily, staring out across the restless waves. That was the problem with living in a lighthouse." That suggests that the waves prevent her from leaving that day.
15. B Fish are often shiny, so when the author describes the, as 'aluminum foil fish' she means they are shining like metal foil you would use in the kitchen.
16. C If you focus on something, you home in on it or concentrate, making it the center of your attention.
17. C The passage says that, unlike synthetic dyes used nowadays: "woad is a natural dye and comes from a plant," which suggests that "synthetic" means non-natural or man-made.
18. D The passage says: "Woad plants were introduced into the United States by settlers in Plymouth in the early 1600s."
19. C The word vast means huge so its opposite would be minute (/mayh-noot/).
20. A Foggy weather means it is hard to see things clearly, and everything at a distance is white, so "Trees loomed up out of white nothingness" is the best evidence of fog.
21. D The narrator can best be summed up as optimistic because although the gold in his grandfather's claim was said to "have been worked out" long ago, he says "who knows?" and goes to look anyway.
22. C A-I-M-P are the first letters of these words and they are in the same order as the alphabet.
23. A The passage says: "there are billions of stars in our galaxy" (rather than any other galaxy), and since "2,500 of them have their own... exoplanets" then they are likely exoplanets in other galaxies too.
24. B The passage alludes to Goldilocks and the Three Bears, a story where the main character finds porridge, which is not too hot and not too cold, but just right.
25. D Slope has the same /oh/ vowel sound as cloak.
26. B The passage says that it was very hot and that "no leaves stirred," so the author's use of "the sky wasn't even breathing" suggests that there wasn't even a breath of wind.
27. D The passage says suggests that the water was as smooth as glass, and if the canoe looked the same above as below then it was mirrored, like a reflection.

28. C If you are purposeful, you do something with purpose or determination, so the correct suffix is -ful.
29. A If grandpa pays $18 for three people, then it suggests each ticket costs $6, and a discount peak-time ticket costs $6.
30. C The cinema has a new set of prices making it really cheap to visit on Wednesdays, so that suggests people weren't coming on Wednesdays and the cinema hopes to encourage more customers on that day with the lower price.
31. D Curry can be spicy hot, but the opposite of that is mild which means not too hot or spicy.
32. A The story is told by the narrator. The passage says: "they caught up with me" and "we exist" and "time doesn't mean much to us," so he is talking in the first person, even though he addresses the reader.
33. B This is a science fiction story. It talks about time and dimensions (physics) and refers to scientists believing that time only moves in one direction.
34. A The word "ease" /i:z/ meaning without effort, rhymes with all of the words except grease /gri:s/ meaning the fat from cooking.
35. C The passage begins "Trees can live a long, long time" and then compares individual and clonal trees, so it is about how long trees live.
36. C The passage refers to bristlecone pines as "individual trees" and quaking aspens as clonal or "trees which are connected by roots," so in this context individual means separate.
37. D To lock something means to secure it with a key, and the opposite is unlock.
38. A The poem is about life: water brings life, and sunshine brings growth and joy to life.
39. B In a diamante poem, the third line comprises three present participles (-ing words) which describe the noun in the first line: these words all refer to rain and they are all -ing words.
40. C When there is enough water to cover or close a road, it is referred to as "flooding."
41. C The first text message is timed 9.54, when Cory is on her way, but will arrive in ten minutes (by 10.04), so the most likely time they were due to meet is 10:00.

42. B In text shorthand, people sometimes write “k” for “okay” which can mean lots of things, but Sophie is unlikely to say “good” that her friend is running late, so in the context “k” means all of the choices, but not this one.

1. The team didn't win, _____ they tried their best.
 - A. even
 - B. still
 - C. despite
 - D. although

Read the passage to answer questions 2 and 3.

Violet, frowning, eased off the lid of the box. The cardboard was speckled with age and some of the blue color had worn off on one corner. She pursed her lips. The attic was very untidy. Inside was another box, this time in blue velvet, and not very large. It about covered the palm of her hand, but no more. She turned it over, trying to figure out how it opened. She gave a sigh. After a few moments fiddling, she found a small, brass button which popped a catch. A silent "oh" escaped her. She'd been looking for grandpa's medals for show-and-tell the week before Veterans Day, but what lay inside was most definitely not a medal.

2. What was Violet doing in the attic?
 - A. Tidying it up.
 - B. Fetching her grandfather's medals for him.
 - C. Finding materials for school.
 - D. Searching for hidden treasure.

3. Which line shows that Violet is surprised by what's inside the box?
 - A. "Violet, frowning, eased off the lid of the box."
 - B. "She pursed her lips."
 - C. "She gave a sigh."
 - D. "A silent "oh" escaped her."

4. Which is the odd one out?

 - D. spoon

Read the passage to answer questions 5 and 6.

The Internet has made it easier for people who live far from schools or libraries to get information. In many ways it has made the world a more equal place—at least for those that speak English (half the world's websites are in that language) and who can access it (just under half the world can't). But the speed of Internet access can vary enormously—not only from area to area but from country to country. In a recent report, produced through a collaborative effort between a British data analysis firm and America's M-Lab, it was revealed that the United States, home of the Internet, was 20th when it came to broadband speed, averaging 25.86 megabits per second. Countries like Lithuania, Taiwan, and Denmark were much faster, and Singapore, heading list, enjoys an average speed of 60.39.

5. How does the author support the claim that the Internet has made the world a more equal place?
- A. Facts
 - B. Statistics
 - C. Quotations
 - D. Expert opinions
6. As it is used in this text, the word “collaborative” most nearly means _____.
- A. joint
 - B. paired
 - C. helpful
 - D. determined
7. In which sentence is “fast” an adverb?
- A. We saw the time and ran home fast.
 - B. It isn’t good to eat too much fast food.
 - C. We took a fast route through the city.
 - D. Some fast cars are very expensive.

Read the poem to answer questions 8 and 9.

We are glorious precious things
And fly on silent, secret wings
Upon a clear but hidden track,
Going forward—never back.

We are small, but we stop—never!
For nothing, no one, nothing—ever.
Chasing seconds, speeding on,
Pursued by hours we soon are gone.

Use well each cohort, sixty-strong
And you’ll have hours of time to use.
Waste us, squander us, all day long
And years of time you’ll surely lose.

8. In the poem, to whom does “we” refer?
- A. The author and reader
 - B. Butterflies
 - C. Minutes
 - D. Time
9. Which choice is the correct rhyme scheme for each stanza?
- A. A, B, C, D
 - B. A, B, A, B

 - D. cover

Read the passage to answer questions 14 and 15.

The island took our breaths away. It lay in the bay like a serpentine pebble, green with specks of red, set in a sparkling sea of silver and aquamarine. There were two hills. The one to the east was the higher of the two and was crowned by a squat round tower. Tom thought it had been a lighthouse, but I thought it was probably a windmill. On the mainland there are many of them: round, whitewashed, with spindly arms creaking slowly, grinding nothing but air.

14. The story is told from whose perspective?
- A. First person main character.
 - B. First person, minor character.
 - C. Third person limited narrator.
 - D. Third person omniscient narrator.

15. What does the passage suggest about the windmills?

- A. They are old.
- B. They are attractive.
- C. They are very fragile.
- D. They are no longer used.

16. How is this word spelled: /pohl/ ?

- A. pale
- B. pole
- C. pile
- D. peel

Read the passage to answer questions 17 and 18.

There is a genus of plants called Tillandsia that grows in places like the West Indies and South America. In the U.S. you might see examples in California, Louisiana, or Texas. They're generally quite small and come in many varieties (there are over 600 kinds), but what makes them unusual is that they don't grow in water or soil, but in the air. They are known as epiphytes from the Greek words epi (above or on) phyte (plant), but they don't just grow on other plants, but on rocks, fences, and even telegraph wires. They don't damage their hosts like parasites, but simply use them as a surface on which to grow. Instead, they take moisture and nutrients from the air and the dirt around them.

17. What is the purpose of this passage?

- A. To offer solve the problems caused by a certain type of plant
- B. To explain the effect on plants of not growing in soil
- C. To outline the characteristics of a kind of plant
- D. To compare parasites and epiphytes

18. Which of the following may be inferred from the passage?

 - D. merchant, spinach, unite, vulture, revise, weary

Read the passage to answer questions 20 and 21.

Would she come? Loretta closed her eyes and crossed her fingers under the long pink scarf that wound twice around her neck. Mina would feel the cold. Muscat to Missoula was quite a change. Would she even recognize her? Mina had been her best friend right through to third grade, and Mom and Mina's mom had been friends too. Mina's father was from Oman and he'd had to return there for work. That had been almost two years ago, and even though they'd texted for the first few weeks, after that they'd lost touch. Then, last week, out of the blue, Mom received a phone call from Mina's mom asking if she could meet them at the airport.

20. The phrase 'out of the blue' most nearly means _____ .

Read the passage to answer questions 26 and 27.

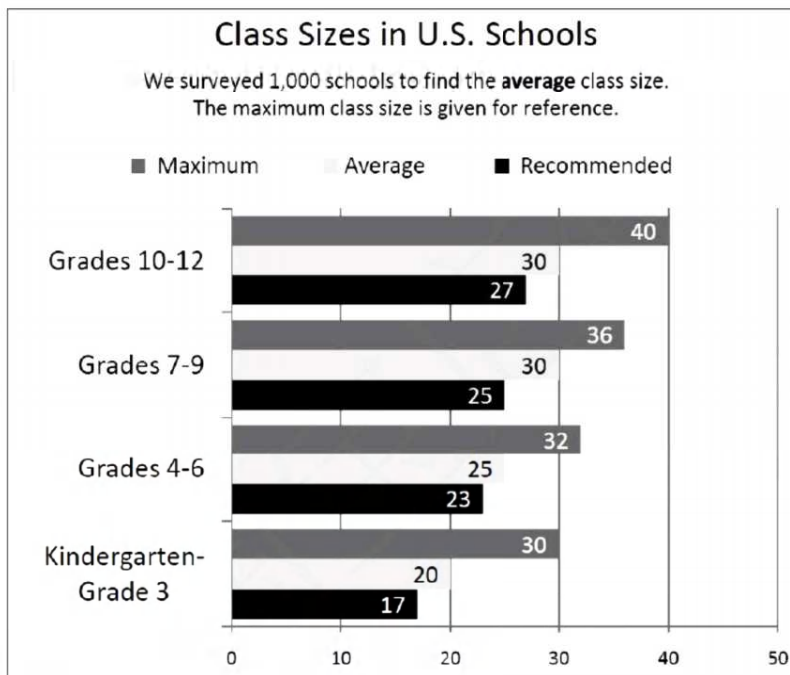

To the east the sky looked bruised: all purples and blues with a hint of yellow on the horizon. For what seemed an age, they watched, too much in awe of the storm to even fear it. They had reached the wooden cabin at the edge of the gully as the first, fat drops of rain fell. Now it was as if a fire hose had been turned on the scant shelter. There was a miniature waterfall in one corner where the tin roof had peeled back from the rafters. The door had long since gone. “Better than nothing,” Ethan concluded, squatting on his haunches and peering out at the rain. Aria was gazing out of the empty window frame at the back. “Maybe,” she said cautiously. “Maybe not.” Then, pointing, “Do you think this thing floats?”

26. How do Ethan and Aria feel at the beginning of the passage?
- A. relieved
 - B. amazed
 - C. frightened
 - D. delighted
27. What is implied by the final sentence?
- A. Aria is thinking about Noah’s Ark.
 - B. The rain is increasing.
 - C. The gully is filling with water.
 - D. Aria wants to make a raft.

28. Which word rhymes with /bleyd/?

- D. In Grades 4-6, average class size was fairly close to the recommended number.

30. Which of the following is NOT implied by the chart?
- A. Authorities believe no teacher should have more than 30 students in one class.
 - B. There are more Kindergarten children than there are places.
 - C. Younger children need more supervision than older ones.
 - D. Grade 10-12 classes are more popular than others.
31. The information can be transmitted to your phone by wireless technology. Which choice can replace “transmitted” in this sentence?
- A. broadcast
 - B. passed on
 - C. spread
 - D. sent

Read the passage to answer questions 32 and 33.

I was standing by the hall of mirrors watching the cotton candy guy doing a great trade. It was then that I had this really strong feeling of... I suppose you'd call it unreality, as though I was an avatar in a video game, and nothing was really real. All the carnival people looked the same. They had the same wide-eyed, wide-mouthed smiles, but there was no expression in them, as though they were fashion store dummies. I began to look into the faces of the crowds, too, and started noticing that their eyes were empty. That's when I realized Greg was gone.

32. Which of the following words could replace “great” in this passage?
- A. crying
 - B. roaring
 - C. howling
 - D. bellowing
33. What mood does the author create by his description of the people at the carnival?
- A. Fun
 - B. Happy
 - C. Creepy
 - D. Mysterious

34. How many affixes does the root of “internationally” have?
- A. 1
 - B. 2
 - C. 3
 - D. 4

Read the passage to answer questions 35 and 36.

Some kids collect Pokémon cards, others collect Legos. Some prefer collecting Squishies or stamps. Saul Dancowicz collects rocks. He’s a self-confessed rock hound. That’s the nickname for those who scour the countryside looking for different kinds of rocks. He has samples from all over the world. Many he collected himself, but others, with the help of his dad, he swapped via a collecting forum. It helps that his dad is a geologist, of course, but he has several books on rocks, and frequently turns to the Internet. “There’s a great site called geology.com with pictures to help identify rocks. It’s a great hobby because there are rocks everywhere, and they’re free.”

35. What does the passage suggest about collecting rocks as a hobby?
- A. Anyone can do it.
 - B. Anyone who owns a rock hound could do it.
 - C. Anyone who knows a geologist could do it.
 - D. Anyone who joins a collecting club could do it.
36. Which sentence is unnecessary?
- A. “Some prefer collecting Squishies or stamps.”
 - B. “Saul Dancowicz collects rocks.”
 - C. “He’s a self-confessed rock hound.”
 - D. “He has samples from all over the world.”

37. In most offices, a typical day begins around 9.00 am.
The word "typical" means all of the following EXCEPT:
- A. usual
 - B. strict
 - C. conventional
 - D. characteristic

 - C. On the Internet
 - D. At a shopping mall

ANSWERS
MAP – Proficient
Test 1

1. D The second part of the sentence is in contrast to the first, and “although” is used to introduce information which is unexpected or surprising. In the middle of a sentence it can directly replace “but.”
2. C The passage says: “She’d been looking for grandpa’s medals for show-and-tell the week before Veterans Day,” so she is finding materials for school.
3. D “Oh” is an exclamation of surprise. This line is after she opens the box, so it shows that the fact that “what lay inside was most definitely not a medal,” was a shock.
4. B Knives, forks, and spoons are all utensils, but a bowl is not.
5. B The author supports the claim by saying: “half the world’s websites” are in English and that “just under half” the world can’t access the Internet which are statistics.
6. A The word “collaborate” means “to work together on a project.” The prefix “co” means jointly, so a collaborative project is a joint project.
7. A When “fast” is used as an adverb it follows a verb and describes how the verb is done. In this choice we ran fast. In all the other sentences it is used as an adjective before a noun.
8. C The poem says that “we” are “chasing seconds” and “pursued by hours” and minutes are between seconds and hours. Also, the final stanza says “use well each cohort, sixty-strong and you’ll have hours of time,” which confirms that the “we” of the poem refers to minutes.
9. D The rhyme scheme in each stanza is that the first and second lines rhyme with one sound (A, A) and the third and fourth lines rhyme with a different sound (B,B).
10. D / ri-spon-suh-bil-i-tee / has 6 syllables: re-spons-ib-il-it-y
11. C The Atacama Desert is below the Equator, so it is south, and it is at around 25 degrees south, and it is about half way between 80 degrees west and 60 degrees west.

12. B The map shows that the Guiana Highlands (which are in partly in Venezuela and partly in Guiana) are above the equator, so we can infer that the country of Guiana is too. Answers A, C, and D are proven to be true on the map.
13. D “Dis” is a negative prefix, and “y” is a noun or adjective suffix, leaving “cover” as the root word. “Discover” means to reveal or “not cover” a fact or object.
14. A The narrator says: “The island took our breath away,” so he or she is speaking on behalf of someone else (Tom) making him or her the chief character, and it is first person because she says: “I thought it was probably a windmill.”
15. D The passage says the windmills had “spindly arms” as though the sails had gone, but the frames were still going round, and that they were “grinding nothing but empty air,” suggesting they were no longer capable of grinding corn to make flour.
16. B Pole is pronounced with the /oh/ sound. Other words with that sound include stole and bowl.
17. C The point of the passage is to say what Tillandsia (air) plants are, and how they grow, so it is outlining the main features or characteristics of the plant.
18. A The passage says that the plants grow “in places like the West Indies” and that “you might see examples in California, Louisiana, or Texas” which are relatively warm places.
19. B The words start with M, R, S, U, V and W, which are in the same order as the alphabet: ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ.
20. C If something comes “out of the blue,” it is a surprise, and after not hearing from her friend for almost two years, her friend’s mom contacting Loretta’s mom would be a surprise.
21. B The passage says “Mina had been her best friend right through to third grade, and Mom and Mina’s mom had been friends too. So, this is a story about friendship, especially friends who reunite after some time.
22. D Something which is severe is extreme, so a severe forest fire would be a terrible forest fire.
23. B The main idea is given by the poster which says that although we recycle, which reduces CO₂ emissions, “we must do more” to protect the environment.
24. A The poster says: “For details on how to rethink, reduce, and recycle” readers should contact the website. In this case “rethink” means do things differently or change the way we do things.

25. D The suffix -ness turns adjectives into nouns.
26. B The passage says, "they watched, too much in awe of the storm to even fear it," which means they gazed in wonder at the storm or were amazed by it.
27. C The last paragraph has Aria gazing out of the water and she asks Ethan, "Do you think this thing floats?" Since the ruined cabin is "at the edge of the gully" and they've been watching the storm for "what seemed an age," then the chances are that the gully is beginning to flood.
28. B Maid is pronounced /meyd/ and rhymes with blade /bleyd/.
29. A The chart only shows the average class sizes. Since some of the classes would have been bigger and some would have been smaller, it is possible that some classes equalled the recommended number, so the statement is likely FALSE.
30. D Just because Grade 10-12 classes are bigger than others doesn't suggest they are more popular.
31. D When something is transferred wirelessly it is sent.
32. B The word "roaring" is a common collation with "trade" and it means to do brisk business.
33. C The author makes the whole fair seem very sinister because the passage says that the people's faces had "no expression" and their "eyes were empty," which is very creepy.
34. C The root of this word is "nation," so there is an adjective suffix (-al), and adverb suffix (-ly), and a transformative prefix (inter- meaning between), so it has three affixes.
35. A The passage says, "There are rocks everywhere, and they're free" and that Saul gets most of his information from the Internet, which suggests that anyone can collect rocks.
36. A The passage gives an example of what other people collect, and then says what Saul collects. So, this second example of what other people collect is not necessary.
37. B "Typical" means normal or usual, so something which characteristic or conventional is also typical. The odd word out is "strict" which means tough or rigid.
38. C This is an acrostic poem, which talks about the sea, and throwing down a gauntlet to anyone challenging the ocean. However, the first letters of each line spell out the word "surfing," making that the topic.
39. D The poem talks of the powerful ocean as "Nature's gauntlet, thrown." In olden days if you threw a gauntlet (the gloves a knight wore) onto the ground, it meant that you were challenging the other person to a fight.

40. C Guest is pronounced /gest/. Other words with the same vowel sound include mess and best.
41. B The notice says to “visit www.westwaterjuniors.nbs.org to enroll,” which means to join or sign up.
42. A The notice is aimed at all young people and since it is about Westwater, it would likely be put up in a community center in Westwater itself.

Read the passage to answer questions 2 and 3.

Winslow Homer is one of the most famous American painters, best remembered for his seascapes. He started his career as an illustrator, providing images for sheet-music covers and magazines, although he didn’t enjoy it much. He was a war correspondent for a time, but painting pictures of the soldiers made him sad. After that, he painted pictures of people enjoying the seaside and the countryside of New England. He mostly taught himself to paint, although he did study in Paris for a short time. His style changed after he visited the United Kingdom. He stayed in a fishing village in the north of England and was impressed by the courage of the sailors. He painted the hardship in their wives’ faces and the fury of the sea. From that point on—wherever he went—he always painted the sea.

2. Which choice best sums up the organization of the passage?
 - A. Cause and effect
 - B. Chronological order
 - C. Steps in a process
 - D. Advantages and disadvantages

3. Why did Winslow Homer turn to painting seascapes?
 - A. He didn't like his job as an illustrator.
 - B. Painting soldiers upset him.
 - C. They were easier than painting people.
 - D. He was affected by his stay in England.

4. Which suffix turns "survive" into a noun?

 - D. -ment

Read the passage to answer questions 5 and 6.

"We could go to old Parker's barn," Jimmy put forward, scuffing at the dry grass. The others murmured inconclusively.

"We should wait for Mo," ventured Charlie.

The twins nodded, looking down the street in the direction of Mo's place. The wind picked up an old candy wrapper and sent it spinning along the sidewalk.

After a few minutes, Allie glanced at Leroy and suggested, "Or we could check out the frogspawn on Ma Griffith's pond."

Jimmy rolled his eyes. "No bugs," he said firmly.

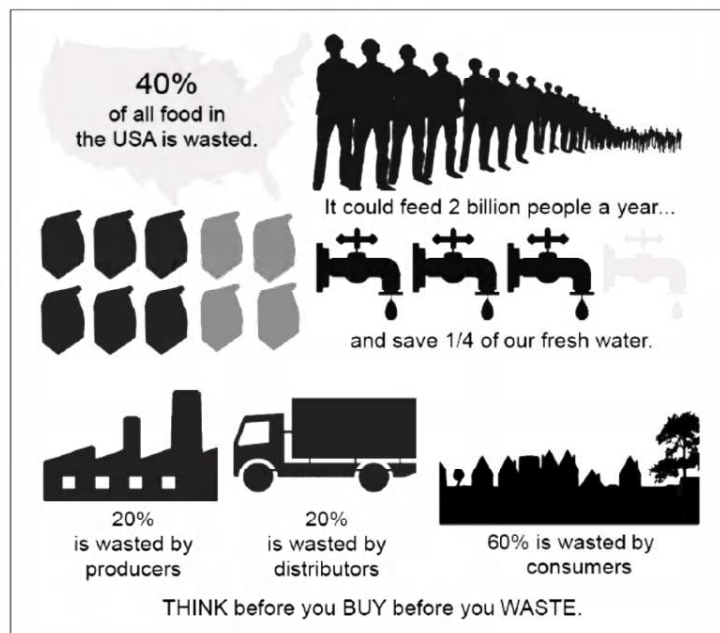

Leroy frowned and wished Mo would hurry up. "Frogs aren't bugs," he said, although there was a lack of conviction in his voice.

"As good as," Jimmy muttered.

Charlie sighed and sat on the wall under the sycamore. He might as well get comfortable. By unspoken agreement, the others joined him.

5. What does the passage suggest about Mo?
- A. He usually has ideas on what to do.
 - B. He is the leader of the group.
 - C. He is always late.
 - D. He is older than the rest of the group.
6. Which line suggests that the group is resigned to wait for Mo?
- A. "We should wait for Mo," ventured Charlie."

Read the passage to answer questions 14 and 15.

Igneous rocks are the hardest, strongest rocks on Earth. They are made from magma, or molten rock. When it solidifies under the ground, it does so slowly, and large crystals form as the rock cools. That gives us rocks like granite, found in places like Indiana and Wisconsin, where there are big quarries for building stone. When the molten rock solidifies above the ground, it cools much more quickly, so the crystals inside the rock are much smaller. That gives us basalt, found in Washington and Oregon and the most common bedrock all over the world. If it cools super-fast, it forms a kind of natural glass called obsidian found in places like Nevada and New Mexico and used by native peoples to make very fine, very sharp tools.

14. Four students summarized the main idea of the passage. Which choice is most accurate?

- A. Igneous rocks are the strongest, hardest, and most common on Earth.
- B. Made from magma, the texture of igneous rocks is determined by how fast it cools.

Read the passage to answer questions 17 and 18.

The river felt empty; I felt utterly alone. The dense undergrowth on either side of the river was impenetrable and even the bright sunshine, shimmering on the water ahead, brought no comfort. For a few seconds I had to fight against panic, convinced that I would never reach the ocean a hundred kilometers away; equally convinced that if I did get there, there'd be nobody to witness it. The rocks seemed to stare at me, pressing in with a kind of timeless malevolence, willing me to be gone.

Read the passage to answer questions 26 and 27.

There are 210 species of orchids in the United States, many endangered, but they represent a tiny fraction of the 25,000 kinds found worldwide, mostly in the tropics. The majority grow from a pseudobulb: a ball of plant material containing food and water from which the leaves and the stem of the orchid grow. These pseudobulbs can range in size from monsters 2.5 meters across to a miniscule 2 mm. Their diversity doesn't end there. Some are parasitic and need the support of other plants to survive, while others are independent. Some have thick, fleshy leaves to conserve water; others have no leaves at all. One thing they do have in common, however, is their flowers. No matter what their color, each one is symmetrical, with its right side a mirror image of its left.

26. Why are orchids rare in the United States?
- A. There aren't many kinds that grow there.
 - B. They are so small they are hard to see.
 - C. They are endangered and so kept secret.
 - D. They are parasites and killed as pests.
27. The word “diversity” most nearly means _____.
- A. habit
 - B. variety
 - C. assortment
 - D. appearance
28. How is this word spelled: /preyz/ ?
- A. prose
 - B. prize
 - C. praise
 - D. peruse

Read the poem to answer questions 29 and 30.

When the teacher gets cross, and her blue eye gets black,
And the pencil comes down on the desk with a whack,
We children all sit up straight in a line,
As if we had rulers instead of a spine,
And it's scary to cough, and it's not safe to grin,
When the teacher gets cross, and her smile goes in.

When the teacher is happy, her smile is so bright,
That the tables get straight, and the reading is right.
The plus and the minus come trooping along,
And the figures add up and stop being wrong,
And we children would like (but dare not) to shout,
When the teacher is happy, and her smile comes out.

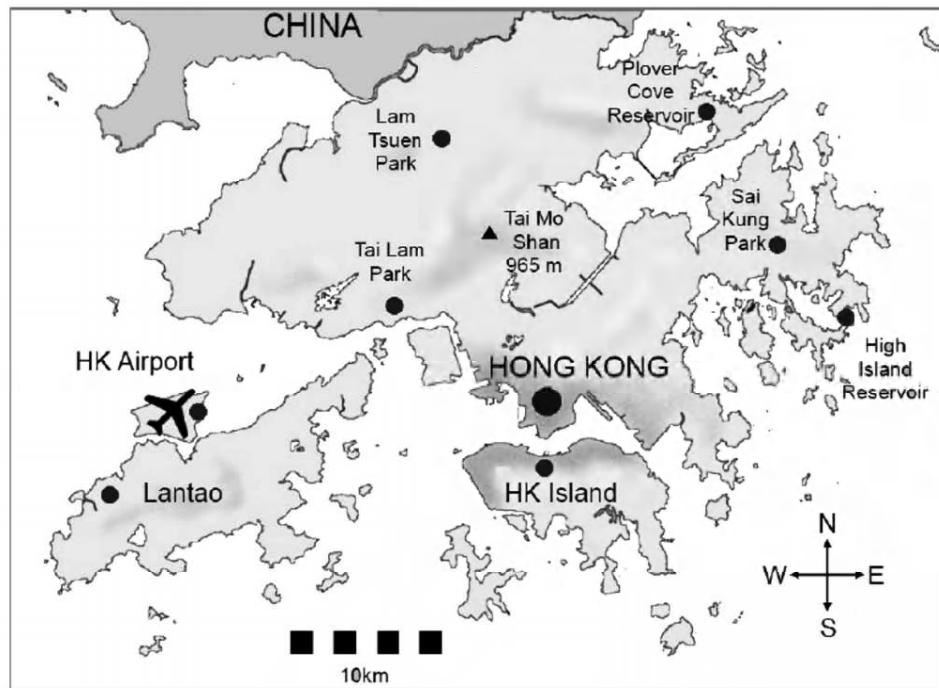

29. How does the narrator feel?
- A. Amused
 - B. Angry
 - C. Scared
 - D. Worried
30. The poem suggests that the teacher's smile is like _____.
- A. the children's smiles
 - B. a rain cloud
 - C. a frown
 - D. the sun
31. Which choice has the words in alphabetical order?

 - D. cable, climate, coax, collection, column, compatible

Read the passage to answer questions 32 and 33.

The United Nations says there are about 7 billion people in the world. It also says that around 6 billion people have or use a mobile phone. Mobile phones are game-changers. With them we can access information from anywhere at any time. They help us find our way to the best shops by GPS or suggest the latest movie to watch. We can even share pictures instantly with friends. In developing countries, they are even more significant. They offer access to education, health care information, and news that in the past simply wouldn't have been available. It is no wonder that developing countries have adopted mobile technology up to twice as fast as countries like the United Kingdom and United States.

32. Which choice best sums up the passage?
- A. There are almost as many mobile phones in the world as there are people.
 - B. Mobile phone technology is put to serious use in the developing world.
 - C. The way we access information has changed because of mobile phones.
 - D. Mobile phones are much more popular in developing countries than in the U.S.
33. Which sentence is not necessary to the text?
- A. "Mobile phones are game-changers."
 - B. "With them we can access information from anywhere at any time."
 - C. "We can even share pictures instantly with friends."
 - D. "In developing countries, they are even more significant."
34. How many affixes does the root of "transportation" have?
- A. 1
 - B. 2
 - C. 3
 - D. 4

Read the passage to answer questions 38 and 39.

Ella felt sweat begin to prickle on her forehead and down her back. Inside the laundry cart was dark and stifling, the smell sour. She heard the woman close the bedroom door, and felt the cart bounce along the floor through the large living room towards the door of the suite. There was a bump as the cart negotiated the doorframe. Ella held her breath. She expected a challenge, a demand to check the cart's contents. Then she heard the door click closed and the crockery trolley ahead begin to rattle down the corridor. Was it that easy? she wondered as they halted. She felt as though she were floating. Freedom! She pulled the sheet away from her face, gulping fresh air.

Read the following passage to answer questions 41 and 42.

There are many famous fast-food restaurants, but have you ever wondered how they got their names? McDonald's is easy enough. It was named after Richard and Maurice McDonald, the brothers who started the burger empire in San Bernardino, California. That was also home to the first Taco Bell, and although its logo is a picture of a bell, it, too, was named after its owner, Glen Bell—and its main product, of course. KFC is just an abbreviation of what the company sells: fried chicken, Kentucky style. But what about Subway? It isn't named after an underground railroad, but after the submarine-shaped rolls used to make sandwiches. It started out as Pete's Submarines, but because that sounded like "pizza marines" on a radio commercial, the name was eventually changed to "Subway" in 1968.

41. Which fast food chain's name doesn't suggest what it sells?
 - A. McDonalds
 - B. Taco Bell
 - C. KFC
 - D. Subway

42. What does the word "eventually" suggest about Subway's name change?
 - A. It took place recently.
 - B. It was done reluctantly.
 - C. It took some time for the name to change.
 - D. The name change took place after an event.

ANSWERS
MAP4 – Advanced
Test 1

1. A The children are going on a trip to the mountains so when the teacher suggests they take extra-warm clothing, she is giving advice.
2. B The text is like a short biography and it takes his painting subjects in order throughout his life, so it is in chronological (or time) order.
3. D The passage says: “His style changed after he visited the United Kingdom” and that he “was impressed by the courage of the sailors” and “painted the hardship in their wives’ faces and the fury of the sea,” so we can say he was affected by his visit.
4. C The suffix “-al” is unusual because it can change verbs into nouns (to survive>survival) and nouns into adjectives (fate>fatal).
5. B When Jimmy suggests going to the barn, Charlie says “We should wait for Mo,” the twins stare in the direction of his house, and while the twins wish he’d hurry up, they all sit on the wall to wait, suggesting Mo is the leader and the group won’t go anywhere or decide on anything without him.
6. D The passage says that one of the group sat on the wall to make himself comfortable while they wait and “By unspoken agreement, the others joined him,” which suggests they are all resigned to waiting.
7. C Wrestle has a silent w, t, and e.
8. C The poster shows four pictures of taps, one shaded and says that if we didn’t throw away 40% of our food, we could “save $\frac{1}{4}$ of our fresh water,” meaning that is how much is currently being wasted in food that’s thrown away.
9. A The poster is mainly aimed at consumers or grocery shoppers because it points out that 60% of the wasted food is wasted by consumers, and its final message is “Think before you buy before you waste”—a message clearly aimed at those that buy food.
10. D Limp means floppy, drooping, or lifeless, like a plant that needs water, so in the context of this sentence it means weak.
11. D A very young cat spends all its waking time playing, so this line best suggests that the cat is only a kitten.

12. B The poem refers to the Siamese as “wholeheartedly cat” meaning all cat or essentially cat, so the title “Essence of Cat” is the best title.
13. A Three of the games use a ball, but boxing doesn’t.
14. B The main idea of the passage is that there are different kinds of igneous rock, but they vary according to how fast the liquid rock cools down, and this choice includes all those elements.
15. A If something solidifies it becomes solid, or “sets” hard, like concrete.
16. C “Hard” can be an adjective or an adverb. When it is an adjective it modifies a noun, or explains a state (hungry, difficult, boring). In this sentence it describes a state.
17. D The passage says the narrator is on the river, but that “the dense undergrowth on either side of the river was impenetrable,” so he can’t be camping or hiking, and there is “a hundred kilometers” to go, so he is very unlikely to be swimming.
18. C The narrator is clearly anxious or uneasy as he says, “I felt utterly alone” and “I had to fight against panic” and “the rocks seemed to stare at me.”
19. B “Whereas” is used to introduce a clause that contains contrasting information and may be replaced by “but.”
20. C Imaginary friends that are like the “real world” are people and animals. As children get older, the percentage of imaginary friends that aren’t people or animals increases. Mythical and other beings account for 21% for the youngest group, 25% for the middle group, and 37% for the oldest group.
21. A The categories of imaginary friend are divided into “real” possible friends like humans and animals (which everyone can see) and “unreal” friends like unicorns and aliens (which they can’t). The older children get, the more likely their friends are to be of the second kind. The chart shows 4-6 year-olds have unreal types 21% of the time, 7-9 year-olds 25% of the time, and 10-12 year-olds 37% of the time.
22. D The emphasis on the word technological is on the third syllable: tec-n-LOG-ic-al.
23. B The passage says traditional Japanese haiku are about the natural world (this is about a dragonfly) and have seventeen syllables in three lines of five, seven and five, like this choice.
24. C Choice C is the least traditional, because not only is it NOT about the natural world (B and D are) but it does not have the 5-7-5 pattern of syllables (A and B do).
25. C The root word is “courage.” The prefix –en means “to make or cause” and the suffix –ment turns a verb into a noun.

26. A The passage says, "There are 210 species of orchids in the United States... but they represent a tiny fraction of the 25,000 kinds found worldwide."
27. B "Diversity" in this passage means "different characteristics" or variety.
28. C Praise, the /ey/ makes a long /a/ sound.
29. A The mood of the poem is light-hearted, and the narrator (one of the "we children") sounds amused as she describes how they all sit up straight when the teacher is cross, and all their sums are correct when the teacher is happy.
30. D The poem talks about the teacher's smile going in and coming out and being bright, just like the sun.
31. D This choice has the words in alphabetical order. They all start with C, but the second and third letters are also in alphabetical order: CA, CL, COA, COLL, COLU, COM.
32. B The passage says that "Mobile phones are a game-changer" and having explained how they are used in places like the UK and USA, it says "In developing countries, they are even more significant," and refers to serious uses such as education and healthcare, rather than shopping or watching movies.
33. C The passage mentions why mobile phones are game-changers: "With them we can access information from anywhere at any time. They help us find our way to the best shops by GPS or suggest the latest movie to watch," so this added information is unnecessary.
34. B The root word is "port" which has the prefix trans- meaning across or through, and the noun suffix -ation, making two affixes.
35. B The scale at the bottom of the map shows 10km and around two scales fit between "HK Island" on the map and "HK Airport."
36. A Plover Cove Reservoir is at the top right-hand corner of the map and the most northerly feature of the four choices.
37. D Bite is pronounced /bahyt/ which has the same ending sound as slight /slahyt/.
38. B The passage finds Ella hiding in a laundry basket as housekeeping pushes the cart from (presumably) a hotel room. She thinks "Freedom!" so we can guess that she is making an escape.
39. C Although it is hot and airless inside the laundry cart, Ella is lightheaded (floating) with happiness because she wonders whether escape can really have been so easy, and mentally shouts "Freedom!" because she is so happy.

40. D Sturdy can apply to people, their character, or things. Describing Turgut as sturdy means he is everything, but not “frail” which means weak or fragile.
41. A There is no clue in “McDonalds” that explains what it sells.
42. C The use of “eventually” means that it took time. It means “in the long run” or “finally.”
